

Artist's concept of Surveyor landing on moon

Big Success By Surveyor

SOFT TOUCH ON MOON FOR U.S.

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — America's Surveyor spacecraft made a prestigious soft-landing on the moon Wednesday night, blazing a trail for Apollo astronauts to follow by 1969, and closing the gap with Russia with new live photographs of the lunar landscape.

Surveyor impacted on the moon at 11:17:37 p.m. Victoria time. Less than 36 minutes later, the first television photographs were transmitted to earth.

Scientists said the pictures were "good quality."

The first picture showed one of Survey's three spider-like legs on its crumpled pod on the moon.

It indicated that the surface of the moon was hard. The leg was not buried in the moon's surface and it did not appear to be covered by dust—a condition also reported by the Russian lunar probe.

Scientists said the spacecraft had deviated only two degrees in its landing from the pre-programmed area.

STABLE
The spindly three-legged space voyager climaxed a 63-hour, 250,000-mile flight in perfect style.

Scientist Albert Hibbs, commenting to reporters at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, said strain gauges on the three legs "indicated a soft landing."

He added that sun sensors indicated the 620-pound craft was stable throughout the tricky descent. An antenna which failed to extend after launch Monday from Cape Kennedy, Fla., causing concern for success, apparently snapped into position at landing, Hibbs added.

CLEAR
The second photograph showed the lunar surface blasted by one of the spacecraft's antennas. The picture was sharp and clear and showed what appeared to be small rocks or mounds resembling freshly-plowed ground. The ground seemed to be pitted.

This photo was a low-resolution photograph of about 200 lines per inch. It was anticipated that high-resolution photos of 600 lines per inch would show the moon's surface with more clarity.

MOON CRUST
The photographs were expected to help scientists determine whether the moon's crust is hard enough to safely support a manned landing by America's three-man Apollo space ship by 1969.

Russia and the United States are racing to be the first to land a man on the moon.

The triumph of Surveyor, making a soft landing on the moon on its first attempt, brought the United States much closer to Russia in the lunar sweepstakes.

The first step in the landing sequence began about 2,000 miles from the moon. Small gas jets fired by radio command from earth turned the

Friday Next Target Day For Troubled Gemini 9

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — Harried engineers Wednesday fixed the balky computer guidance system that only hours earlier forced a two-day delay for the Gemini 9 spacecraft of luckless astronaut Thomas Stafford and Eugene Cernan.

It was the second time in 15 days that the spacecraft's computer had forced the word in their space capsule that their launch had been postponed, this time to Friday.

The astronauts had come within less than two minutes of blastoff when their computer system went awry. As the seconds ticked off, their "space window"—the time allotted to go into orbit in chase of a target satellite—slammed shut.

The trouble was traced to two faulty electronics units in a transmission device that takes guidance information from a computer and sends it to the launch site.

The two faulty parts, called logic modules, were replaced and preliminary tests showed the trouble had been eliminated.

Despite Fee Rise

B.C. to Hold Premium Line

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett said Wednesday the government will increase its subsidy to the B.C. Medical Plan, if necessary, rather than increase premiums on its low-cost medicare scheme when doctors' fees go up on Jan. 1.

He also said that when the national medicare plan is approved by Ottawa, the provincial government will try to get Ottawa to contribute to the B.C. Medical Plan.

The premier seemed sympathetic to the B.C. Medical Plan, if necessary, rather than increase premiums on its low-cost medicare scheme when doctors' fees go up on Jan. 1.

THREE YEARS
He said it must be kept in mind that the increase (still under negotiation) is to cover a three-year period during which there was no fee increase.

The plan is "subsidized, as you know," the premier said. "It is not the intention of the government to increase the premiums—we will increase that over-all subsidy if necessary."

BEST IN CANADA

The government will study the national medicare plan when it comes up in Ottawa, said Mr. Bennett, adding:

"Our plan is now the best plan in Canada—of course we'd like the federal government to contribute toward it."

"Once the federal act has been brought down we will be able to discuss how the plans can be dovetailed."

Gibbet Goes Up In Leopoldville

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Workers Wednesday night erected a gallows in Leopoldville's grand square where former Congolese premier Everiste Kimba and three former cabinet ministers are scheduled to be hanged for treason today.

A late-evening broadcast said the hangings would go on as scheduled, indicating President Joseph Mobutu had rejected appeals from diplomats and church leaders to commute the sentences.

Bosch Grabs 2-1 Lead For Presidency

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI) — Former president Juan Bosch took a two-to-one lead over his principal rival Wednesday in early, inconclusive returns from the Dominican Republic's presidential election.

Returns from about 10 per cent of the voting precincts in the capital gave Bosch 12,147 votes to 6,329 for Joaquin Balaguer, his chief opponent. Rafael Bonnelly, the dark horse candidate had less than 1,500 votes.

There were no immediate returns from the interior, where the bulk of Balaguer's support reportedly lies. Bosch, a leftist, was expected to draw his chief support from Santo Domingo and other urban areas.

The initial returns were issued shortly after provisional president Hector Garcia Godoy went on radio and television to congratulate the Dominican people for the "exemplary way" in which they conducted themselves during the voting.

About 12,000 soldiers and police guarded the nation's 3,400 polling places after a tense campaign, but voting proceeded in an orderly manner, with no major incidents reported.

A 42-member ad hoc committee of observers from the Organization of American States also extended its "warmest and most sincere congratulations" to the Dominican people.

Congressman Henry B. Gonzalez of Texas, a U.S. observer in the group, said he saw voting proceeding "smoothly everywhere."

Explosions Hit Cyprus Districts

NICOSIA (AP)—The Cyprus government announced that as a result of a recent spate of bomb explosions in Greek sectors of the island, which it claimed were the work of Turkish-Cypriot agents, it was sealing off the Turkish sector of Nicosia.

Ky and Buddhist Critics Reach Vote Compromise

SAIGON (AP)—Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military government and his Buddhist critics agreed Wednesday on a formula to give civilians a voice in guidance of South Viet Nam toward the general election Sept. 11. Buddhist crowds protested the compromise.

Rains Pellets

Addicts Law On Way

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. House passed pioneering legislation Wednesday to fight narcotics addiction with medical treatment instead of prison terms.

The roll call vote was 367 to 1. The dissenter was Rep. Martha Griffiths (D-Mich.), who said she objected to offering a "brave of immunity from prosecution to get addicts to submit to treatment."

Although cut back somewhat after a spirited two-day debate, the administration-backed bill would give federal judges unprecedented new power to suspend criminal proceedings against addicts who are considered good prospects for rehabilitation.

The bill, which now goes to the Senate, would allow judges to give addicts accused of non-violent federal crimes the option of standing trial on the charges or volunteering for "civil commitment."

Secret Bomb Used

SAIGON (UPI)—An armada of 120 U.S. air force jets using a powerful secret bomb turned eight square miles of North Viet Nam into an inferno Tuesday in the war's greatest bombing mission, it was disclosed Wednesday.

U.S. military spokesmen said the warplanes, striking in wave after wave from morning to night, pulverized Yen Bai supply complex 80 miles north of Hanoi, destroyed 72 warehouses, damaged 44 others, and knocked out 25 of 30 anti-aircraft positions in the area.

Reliable sources said the air force jets dropped a hitherto secret anti-personnel bomb that shoots out thousands of lethal pellets. It was designed for use against such targets as clusters of North Vietnamese manning anti-aircraft guns.

The sources said the anti-personnel bomb had been used before against North Vietnamese targets, but this was the first time its use had been disclosed in the war.

Police Strike Headed Off

QUEBEC (CP) — Agreement was reached early today heading off a strike of Quebec's 3,200 provincial policemen which had been scheduled to start at noon, a spokesman for the Quebec Provincial Police's Association said.

The spokesman said all the demands of the 1,800-member association have been satisfied.

Vancouver Magistrate Finds Hole in Vehicle Act

Parkers' Paradise—for a Month

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver's traffic police were ordered to stop ticketing illegally parked cars Wednesday after Magistrate Les Bewley discovered that a section of the provincial Motor Vehicle Act, deleted at the last session of the legislature, affected the issuance of such tickets.

What this means is that if police don't see you in the car, they can't issue a ticket. They can tow away your empty car if it's blocking traffic, overparked or illegally parked. But unless they catch you in it, no ticket can be issued, because they can't identify you positively as the driver.

In a statement issued after Magistrate Bewley's decision, city Prosecutor Stewart McMorran said charges against identifiable drivers will continue, since the decision has no bearing on this type of case.

Meantime, offences under the act and Vancouver's street and traffic bylaw which depend on the licensing provision of the act for proof of ownership and vehicle operation will be dropped, pending result of an appeal.

The appeal is not expected to be heard until the end of June.

Mr. McMorran said the legislation which was revoked placed the onus on the owner of the car to prove he was not driving the car or had not loaned it at the time of an offence. Now, the onus is on the Crown to prove the owner of the car was the individual driving it.

Magistrate Bewley discovered the deletion in the act during the trial May 31 of Nurmi Simm of Burnaby.

Mr. Simm had been charged with going through a stop sign. Continued on Page 2

Meter Business as Usual in Victoria

There will be no change in Victoria and if you park your car without putting money in the meter you can expect to get a ticket.

City Solicitor T. P. O'Grady said Wednesday that no action would be taken here at least until a superior court has handed down a decision on the controversial parking issue. The deletion of Section 68 of the Motor Vehicle Act may have weakened the securing of a conviction somewhat, said Mr. O'Grady, but he considered that the previous section of the act, which was also relevant, was sufficient to secure the conviction of a car owner.

"I hesitate to give an opinion at this stage, but you can say that there will be no change in Victoria until a decision has been handed down by a superior court," Mr. O'Grady said.

NATO Plan Rejected

PARIS (UPI) — France will reject a suggestion of its 14 NATO allies for joint talks on the future role within the

Fewer Growls Possible

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Martin said Wednesday he believes great improvement is possible in the relations between the Western and Communist nations of Europe, notwithstanding Viet Nam.

He told a press conference he hopes that the NATO council at its meeting in Brussels June 29 will agree on a collective position concerning improvement of East-West relations.

NATO had to be equally as strong as Russia and there must be no let-up. But improvement in East-West relations remained an essential objective.

PARIS CENTRE — Mr. Martin again indicated Canada favors keeping the NATO council in Paris.

He said it would cause no great inconvenience to have the council located apart from NATO's military headquarters, which will have to be moved from Paris—probably to Brussels—as a result of the French decision.

France would feel "closer contact" with NATO if the council remained in Paris. For NATO, London would not be a satisfactory alternative.

Mr. Martin said it is important for NATO to endeavor to seek improvement in East-West relations through consultation first among the Alliance members "and not seek only to do alone."

Carpenters Reject Pay Offer

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Carpenters have rejected a contractors association offer of a 15-cent hourly increase over three years, are continuing with a government-supervised strike vote.

The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners (CLC) in a statement issued Wednesday, said the issue is not wages, but a shorter work week. They seek a seven-hour day instead of eight with the same take-home pay. Basic rate is $3.49 an hour.

"The contractors' offer has cut down on our work conditions considerably," said Arthur Leam, secretary of the carpenters' provincial council.

He said a 15-cent hourly pay hike given to the carpenters as of June 1 is "deliberately calculated to provoke a walkout, thus giving the contractors an excuse for a general lockout."

Road 'News' To Javelin

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian Javelin Ltd. said Wednesday it rejected as "not factual" a press release that referred to the federal government building a $35,000,000 highway near company properties in Labrador.

The release was drawn up by a public relations firm in the United States, the company said in a statement issued by Lorne A. Pearce, vice-president and general manager.

His statement said "no government or government official has offered to build any road in Labrador for Canadian Javelin's benefit."

De Valera

Voting Heavy

DUBLIN (AP) — Voting was heavier than expected in the Irish presidential election Wednesday, with 83-year-old Eamon De Valera a 6-to-1 favorite to win a second seven-year term.

When the polls closed at 10 p.m., the turnout was calculated in the range of 60 to 66 per cent, compared with the 58.4 per cent in the 1959 election.

At the close of polling, ballot boxes were brought to centres where the count will begin at 9 a.m. today.

The first result may be known by 2 p.m.

Woman Church Executive:

The Pill Promotes Love

HAMILTON (CP) — Life could be whole, free, creative and joyous, and all humans could be loving, unafraid and happy but the place to start to make this real is with the family, a woman church executive said Wednesday.

Speaking on the third day of the second North American conference on church and family sponsored by the National Council of Churches in the United States and the Canadian Council of Churches, Cynthia C. Wedel of New York said:

Each of the parties in a love relationship must be able to say no, to refuse the relationship. Only then can it be real.

But it is self-evident that the finest possibilities of the marriage relationship have often been thwarted by the attitudes of society and the church, she told more than 500 delegates to the convention that ends Friday.

Young people need help in understanding what it can mean to give oneself to another. They must try to see the "deep, essential loneliness" in each other and realize that marriage can alleviate that loneliness.

Dr. Wedel said every really happily married person probably would say that sexual relations are far less important in marriage than what movies, books, advertising and most courses in marriage preparation make them out to be. "I am inclined to think that today's youth, aided by the pill and antibiotics, so that the old fears of pregnancy and disease are gone, may at last be able to find more of the real meaning of marriage."

"If marriage . . . can mean a relationship in which you are loved for what you are, rather than for what you accomplish, the family can begin to be a wonderful place for a child. Here he is loved just because he is himself. He may be disciplined when he breaks the rules, but he is still loved in the midst of discipline."

Ky's Successes Defeat for U.S.

By JOSEPH KRAFT
From Washington

Marshal Nguyen Gue Ky's show of force in Da Nang and Hue has been hailed by his admirers in the Saigon embassy, the U.S. State Department and the press as a great success. But for whom? Not, certainly, for the United States. For the chief result of the recent events is to identify the American stake, even more closely with the fate of the Ky regime. But whatever its immediate ups and downs, the Ky government is a no-exit government — a government without a future.

It cannot fight a war. Still less can it pacify the country in the wake of American military success. Least of all can it work out an agreement with the other side.

The basic weakness of the Ky regime is that it is not a government so much as a ramshackle collection of opportunists who have risen to the top through a crazy succession of military coups. Far from working together in accord on government business, the chief military figures in the regime tend to pursue their own private and local interests. And nothing shows it better than the basic military command built around the four army corps.

The 3rd Corps around Saigon, because of its proximity to the capital, has in general been responsive to central direction. But the 1st Corps has been mainly taken up, one way or another, with the Buddhists.

The 4th Corps, in the rich delta region, has been largely a fief for the accumulation of personal fortunes. The 2nd Corps, embracing the highland district, the scene most of the American military activity, has been much the same.

In these circumstances, morale in the Vietnamese army has steadily sunk. Desertions, which are mainly cases of men going home, have been running at the rate of at least 7,500 per month. The capacity and interest of the Vietnamese army in fighting the war has dropped accordingly. And thus it happens that Americans are doing most of the fighting and now absorbing most of the casualties.

The weaknesses that debar the Ky regime for waging the war effectively are even more critical when it comes to pacification. For pacification involves chiefly winning the confidence of local people through civil police actions and social reforms.

But the Ky regime, after the fashion of most military regimes, has only contempt for the civil police function; the police remain among the poorest paid and worst trained officials in South Viet Nam.

As to social reforms, they are constantly being obstructed and diluted by the corruption endemic in the regime. The true condition of social reform is the one thing the Ky regime seems unable to admit — that is a freely elected civil government with popular support.

Lastly with respect to wrapping the war up through negotiations, the Ky regime is doing no bound to believe that time is working on their side. The transparent ineptitude of the regime, in other words, can only encourage the rebels to step up their activities — the more so as they must now see the prospect of enlisting some of the Buddhists.

Moreover, even if the time came when the other side was ready to negotiate, the Ky regime would constitute an insuperable obstacle to talks. Most of its leading members, including Marshal Ky himself, fail to pass the acid test of nationalism.

In the Indochinese struggle for independence, they fought with the French against their own people. It is not thinkable that the Viet Cong, or Hanoi, or Peking would deal with such men.

In these circumstances, it is sheer folly for American officials to celebrate Marshal Ky's victories and to imagine that some glowing future presents itself. The fact is that Marshal Ky's victories are American defeats. The truth is that so long as the Ky regime stays in power, for so long the United States will be obliged to intensify its own war effort.

OPINION

Strategy of Caution

'Graduated Deterrence'

By BRIG.-GEN. S. L. A. MARSHALL (U.S.A. Ret.)

Americans have been overtly engaged in combat operations in Southeast Asia now for more than a year.

All main U.S. forces participating there are more tightly controlled from Washington than has ever been the case in prior wars.

Whether the decisions are made by high civilian authority, or are influenced by the joint chiefs of staff, the professional commanders on the scene have relatively little to say about what category of targets will be bombed in North Viet Nam or how navy power will be employed.

This is the strategy of "graduated deterrence" as we are seeing it applied for the first time.

The prime object of graduated deterrence is to keep war limited, as a safeguard against graduating brush-fires into a nuclear explosion.

It is a strategy of such extraordinary caution that main advantage in the timing of operations is yielded to the other side.

It must in a very real way restrain the imagination and boldness of those who are responsible for its exercise, to the degree that they become more concerned with getting a war stopped than with ending it on favorable terms.

Of that attitude comes a retardation in each move, promoting only successive disappointments.

When what was reckoned would deter fails to do so, the scale of war then builds upward, though not necessarily to the advantage of the stronger antagonist, since he still hopes to succeed in the next stage and proceeds but one step at a time. In short, graduated deterrence, rather than dampening conflict feeds fuel to the fire. "Just enough" never works in war, though nations have continued to try it. "More than enough" is the only prudent rule.

Servicemen Win Awards

Four Vancouver Island servicemen have been given cash awards for valuable suggestions to the national defence department.

They are G. W. Fairall of 508 Spadina, who works at HMC Dockyard and CEO G. W. Grodke of 84 Moss, who sails aboard the destroyer-escort HMCS St. Croix; Sgt. P. J. Wirt and Sgt. D. S. Groves, both of Canadian Forces Base, Comox.

In all, 23 contributors of suggestions were given awards. Top award of $25 went to Sgt. D. S. Syme of Ottawa, an air force technician, who, with a fellow employee, developed a more sturdy latching device on the baggage compartment doors in the nose of Expeditor aircraft. The latch will save an estimated $4,241 annually.

Death May Save Nazi Desk Killers

Reuters, from Berlin

One of the problems facing the West German government is whether Nazi officials responsible for wartime atrocities will die of old age before they can be brought to trial.

The whole of Hitler's machinery for the extermination and persecution of Jews and political opponents now is being slowly and laboriously laid bare.

While many Gestapo and other officials have already been tried and punished for carrying out its programs in the field, few of the "desk murderers" who worked out and ran the death machinery have been brought to justice.

Many of the papers were destroyed at the end of the war on Hitler's orders and those that still existed remained until recent years uninvestigated, in the hands of the Western Allies or Communist countries.

The 11 prosecutors now have completed the first stage of their investigations—sorting out the various "complexes" of crimes, such as the organization of death camps and mobile execution squads and establishing who was involved in them.

They have compiled a list of 1,000 former officers who worked at the headquarters. About one-third of these are believed to be dead or living under assumed names.

The task of the prosecutors now is to establish how much guilt they share for the persecution and murder of millions of Jews and other victims.

China to Explode H-Bomb This Fall?

Informed sources believe Communist China's next effort in its nuclear weapons development will be to explode a device equivalent to a million tons of TNT.

It will probably be a hydrogen bomb, and could put China into the exclusive club before France, which has been working on an H-bomb for six years.

A megaton-sized blast, employing a thermonuclear test device, could come as early as this fall.

The capability to produce materials for nuclear weapons sets the pace of Chinese development rather than China's degree of knowledge.

The Soviet Union's chief, and now regretted—contribution to the Chinese was to help them develop the industrial capability for producing enriched uranium fuel for atomic weapons.

The Western world can take little comfort in China's industrial backwardness or economic failures because she has demonstrated with three nuclear explosions in less than two years that she is willing to make virtually any sacrifice to perfect the bomb.

Neither is it sensible to dismiss China as a nuclear power because she has exploded only devices rather than streamlined bombs to fit inside airplanes or the tips of missiles.

"It is foolhardy," one U.S. nuclear expert commented, "to make a distinction between weapons and devices. If you can build an automobile engine you certainly can build a body to enclose it. There is no reason for us to believe they cannot do whatever they need to do."

At Vancouver

Clouds, Rain Getting Worse

VANCOUVER (CP) — The study showed that since 1940 there has been a progressive deterioration of Vancouver's weather, and Mr. Wright suggested it could be adding up to a significant climate change.

A detailed study of weather patterns in Vancouver over the last 25 years, says the amount of sunshine has been dropping steadily since the Second World War and the amount of rain has been increasing lately.

Jack Wright, head of the federal weather office here, said he began the study because of a public demand following the summer (not much sunshine) and winter (unusual amounts of snow and cold) of 1964.

Results of the Vancouver survey were similar to others conducted on a hemispheric and local basis. These showed an upward trend in world average temperature from 1885 to 1940, then a sharp drop relieved only by a temporary rise in 1959-60.

"In fact, the five-year period centred on 1955 shows an absolute minimum of sunshine and a maximum of rainfall for Vancouver," said Mr. Wright.

Chrysler Has Record Month

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Reports from the U.S. car manufacturers of their May sales indicated a mixed pattern. Chrysler, No. 3 in the main group, had a record month turning out 118,936 units as against 117,795 in the previous May.

LATTER BETTER

Ford Motor Company's U.S. output was 226,683 units down 4 per cent from the 236,837 in May 1965. (This does not include sales turned out in Ford's Canadian plants for sale in the U.S.)

General Motors suffered the biggest drop with a May total of 408,676 units, down 10 per cent from 447,776 a year ago.

The figures indicate that the latter part of May was better for the industry than the first.

BIG SHIP DUE

A 31,000-ton Norwegian bulk carrier is coming to Vancouver Island harbors this month to take on what is believed to be the largest single lumber cargo ever shipped.

Calling at Port Alberni, Crofton and Harmac, the Robert Stove will take on 17,225,000 cubic feet of packaged lumber for shipment to the U.S. Atlantic coast.

VENKEL CHARTERED

The Robert Stove is under a new charter to Canadian Transport Company Ltd., the deep-sea shipping subsidiary of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.

Owned by F. H. Lorentzen of Oslo, the Robert Stove is a seven-hundred vessel built in Sweden in 1963 measuring 644 feet by 85 feet.

Successor to George Hees as president of the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges is Charles B. Neapole, 61, who for 45 years was with the Royal Bank of Canada and rose to the position of vice-president. He takes over his new duties immediately.

Solids would move along the 12-inch pipeline with the aid of liquids such as petroleum products.

Shell will spend $650,000 on research and development before starting the project which will be the first of its type in the world.

RECORD GAS FLOW

An international consortium headed by Phillips Petroleum announces a gas well under the North Sea which has given a record flow on test.

are expressing their real desire to spend some of the capital of their retirement fund along with their savings, as a designed monthly income basis. They have decided that their hard-earned savings would better serve them to maintain their standard of living in their declining years, rather than to be left in their estates.

If this is, in your feeling, perhaps you will find the following information interesting:

$10,000 at 7 1/2% produces $750.00 annually. If monthly payments of $750.00 are made, it would take 30 years to pay off. If monthly payments of $500.00 are made, it would take 45 years to pay off. If monthly payments of $250.00 are made, it would take 90 years to pay off.

Victoria Mortgage Corporation will mail a monthly check, applying on a regular basis, to the principal of your investment. The amount of your investment is repaid in the event of your death, in which case your estate will receive the principal plus interest.

Spring Bath Private Affair

Family Held After Beating Of Three Elderly Relatives

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI)—A family accused of beating their 102-year-old great-grandmother and her two 81-year-old spinster daughters and robbing them of $4,000 waived extradition Wednesday to Tennessee.

Constable Artie Murr of Newport, Tenn., said "It was one of the most brutal attacks I've heard of," he said the victims told him they were beaten, choked, bound and left for dead.

Recovering at their three-room home in the Tennessee mountain settlement of Raven's Branch were Mrs. Mary Jane Messer, 102, and her twin spinster daughters, Martha and Liza, 81.

Authorities said they were attacked Tuesday. They received aid after one of the younger women freed herself and walked one-half mile to a neighbor's house.

In Columbus, Mrs. Messer's granddaughter, Mrs. Ruby Morgan, 51, Mrs. Morgan's two sons, Leon, 28, and Floyd, 24, and Leon's wife, Betty, 26, all waived extradition. They were expected to be escorted back to Newport by law officers early today to face charges.

Leon is a parolee from a Tennessee state prison, where he served eight years of a life sentence for being an accessory in a murder case with a third brother, who was executed.

Murr said the women told him two men broke down the door of their three-room cabin in the rural area about 20 miles from Newport late Monday night.

Officers in Columbus said they recovered $3,850 in cash and a .32 calibre pistol when they arrested the Morgans.

A doctor at a clinic said Mrs. Messer had bruises on her face and arms. He said Martha was the most seriously hurt.

He said she was badly bruised on the body, had a gash on her forehead and two teeth knocked out. The doctor said Liza told him she was nearly strangled when the attackers choked her and stuffed a gag in her mouth.

All three were released after they were treated and returned to their home, which is not even in the nearest distance of the nearest neighbor, one resident said.

Mr. Messer and her daughters have lived in the small, isolated home alone since her husband died five years ago. He was 101.

Deadline Set

MONTREAL (CP)—The Federated Association of Letter Carriers, holding its 34th annual convention here, adopted Wednesday a resolution giving the federal government until October to recognize its right to bargain collectively and to strike.

If the federal government did not comply, the membership authorized its executive council to hold a referendum to determine whether carriers want to strike just before Christmas.

Also discussed Wednesday was a merger of at least three postal workers' unions—the Canadian Union of Postal Workers and the Federated Association of Letter Carriers, both affiliated with the Canadian Labor Congress, and the Postal Workers' Brotherhood.

M. W. Kay of Ottawa, national president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, told delegates it would be better if all belonged to one union.

"It isn't a strike, it's a protest march. The bar's out of Gordon's Dry Gin."

U.K. Strike

Seamen Blacklist Tankers

LONDON (UPI)—Britain's crippling maritime strike took an ominous turn Wednesday when the striking seamen's union blacklisted two giant foreign flag tankers supplying this island nation with vital oil.

At the same time, general secretary William Hogarth of the National Union of Seamen renewed his threat to call for help from foreign and domestic workers as a last step to obtain a new contract for the union's 62,500 members.

The tankers were blacklisted because the union said they were British-owned vessels sailing under the Panamanian flag in order to break the strike, now in its 17th day.

NO HELP

The union action means that Britain's dockers will not help the two tankers—the 33,000-ton Esso Spain and the 48,645-ton Esso Austria—in or out of British port berths.

The NUS has been complaining recently that British flag tankers were being diverted from British ports so that the ships would not become strike-bound. The union has threatened to retaliate against companies diverting their ships from home ports. Seamen can only strike when their ship returns to Britain. A strike at sea is mutiny.

Rivals Talking In Dock Strike

MONTREAL (CP)—Both sides in the longshoremen's strike at three Quebec ports were holding discussions in Montreal Wednesday in a renewed effort to end the walkout that began 3 1/2 weeks ago.

"We're just discussing," said federal mediator Judge Rene Lippe, when asked whether a meeting attended by labor and management as well as by himself was tantamount to full-scale negotiations.

The judge would not make any further statements about the nature or progress of the talks.

PEACEFUL.

Meantime, the Montreal waterfront, hit by violence Tuesday, appeared generally peaceful as an estimated 400 policemen kept close watch.

In Montreal municipal court, seven men pleaded not guilty to charges of trespassing on property owned by the National Harbors Board and of disturbing the peace.

The charges resulted from the Tuesday disturbances in which gangs of men damaged trucks and offices and hurled shouts and some stones at police.

DEPUTY MINISTER.

Trial of the men was set for June 8. Bail ranged between $50 and $400.

Also attending the settlement talks Wednesday was George Haythorne, the federal deputy minister of labor.

Earlier, Judge Lippe had conducted talks with representatives of the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA).

Among the topics discussed were job guarantees, a major issue in the ILA's dispute with the Shipping Federation of Canada.

Rocks Start Fast But Stop Faster

By ROBIN JEFFREY

As the late General Custer said about a quarter of the way through his meeting with the Indians at Little Big Horn: "Men, I think we're going to win this battle."

Victoria Shamrocks thought they were going to win their Inter-City Lacrosse League battle with first-place Coquitlam Adanacs at Memorial Arena Wednesday night. Shamrocks had a 4-1 lead after the first period. They lost, 9-5.

What happened? Neither Shamrock coach Bert Bertioia nor Gordie Gimble, coach of the Adanacs, could put his finger on it. But whatever happened, it was in the second quarter.

That's when the Adanacs scored six unanswered goals, two on the power-play and one while Shamrocks had a man advantage.

NOT DISMAYED
Alex Carey scored at 1:29 and John Surinak 3:13. Shamrocks were stunned, but not dismayed.

Adanacs Les Glover went off on a penalty at 3:46. Shamrocks thought they saw security. But Mike Gates broke away to take a long pass from Ron Bodner and faked goalie Barry Forbes to tie the score at 4:15.

Then it was Carey again at 6:05. Fred Usselman on the power play at 8:45 while Billy Gray was off, and Carey got his hat-trick at 14:20 with Ron Jay in the penalty box.

That left Adanacs ahead, 7-4, at halftime, and Gimble's Carey crew was not the type to throw away three-goal leads.

HIT STRIKE
Shamrocks, who hit the post four times in the night, were almost as inept in the third quarter, and when they finally hit their stride again in the fourth, they were confronted by a solid-Merv Schweitzer in the Adanacs goal.

With Carey serving a penalty at 9:17 of the fourth period and the score 8-5, Schweitzer made close-up stops off Len Restell, Nirmal Dillon, and Bill Munroe.

Early he had robbed Nirmal with a stick save, after Ramji Dillon had given his brother an open side to shoot on.

TOO MUCH?
Adanacs' Gimble thought Shamrocks might have been relying too much on the Dilloes. "Those kids didn't play half as well as I've seen them play. I'm not saying they had a bad game, but they weren't as good as when they beat us."

Bertioia of the Shamrocks was stumped. "I don't really know what happened. We were moving the ball too fast on the power play. That was part of it."

Billy Gray returned to the Shamrocks Tuesday and scored the first time he got the ball in the first quarter. He bumped his way by one check and beat Schweitzer with a low bouncer. About a minute later, he got an assist on Tom Black's goal.

Gray's hitting and three goals from Bill Munroe were the bright spots for Shamrocks. Munroe scored twice in the first quarter (one on the power play) and got a power-play goal in the fourth quarter.

Billy Gray returned to the Shamrocks Tuesday and scored the first time he got the ball in the first quarter. He bumped his way by one check and beat Schweitzer with a low bouncer. About a minute later, he got an assist on Tom Black's goal.

Gray's hitting and three goals from Bill Munroe were the bright spots for Shamrocks. Munroe scored twice in the first quarter (one on the power play) and got a power-play goal in the fourth quarter.

Nicholson Roasted Over Strike

By FRANK KELLY
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — New Democrat leader T. C. Douglas Wednesday lambasted Labor Minister Nicholson for being a management mouthpiece in the Quebec dock strike which threatens the nation's economy.

as a spokesman for the employers, then let him go into a department where he will be such a spokesman for the employers and not stay in the labor department, where he is supposed to be unbiased and impartial.

His statement Monday last sounded like a press release debate on the strike.

Mr. Douglas was followed in the debate by Conservative leader Diefenbaker, who accused the government of nonchalance and inertia in dealing with the strike.

Both opposition leaders tried in vain to push Mr. Nicholson into giving a full statement on the causes of the strike. The labor minister refused, saying any statement by him at that time could jeopardize the possibility of settlement.

The implications of the strike, which has already been marred with violence, were spelled out by Finance Minister and Trade Minister Winters.

Mr. Sharp said there are now 84 ships waiting to load or unload grain at the three ports affected by the strike. He said 25,000,000 bushels of grain are involved.

EXPO WORK
"I can assure you that all the forces of the government are being concentrated on trying to get this strike settled," he said.

Mr. Winters said the strike is impeding work at Expo '67 because material needed for construction cannot be unloaded. "The strike is a matter of grave consequence to Canada and Expo is suffering with the rest of our economy," he added.

Luck Brought Duck Shot

Taking short-cut that didn't work

For the past nine years at least, a pair of Mallard ducks have nested at Clover Point.

Each year I have hoped to get photos of the new family of young ducklings before they left their mother. This year luck was with me.

Usually the nest has been on the bank along the boathouse side of the point. This year I saw Mother Mallard swimming, with her young following, toward the end of the point.

As she tried to round the end of the sewer outlet, the waves were too strong for the young and, after watching her brood fight a losing battle against the choppy water, she led them back to dry land and safety. This was when I had my opportunity to take their picture, as they walked across the cement sewer outlet.

She apparently thought she could lead them over the rocks to the other side of the point but the rocks were too big for the tiny blobs of fuzz. Again they were forced to turn back.

Finally she herded them back into the water and they swam well past the waves. When I saw them, they were headed west with one little fellow following 25 to 30 feet behind the flotilla.

Vachon Case Explodes in House

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Parliament, never far from crisis, today faces new turmoil over the case of Arthur Vachon.

Opposition leader John Diefenbaker, served notice he will move for an emergency Commons debate on the Vachon case.

In some of the bitterest exchanges since the Munsinger revelations, Conservative MPs pounded the government with questions about how Quebec Premier Jean Lesage knew of an RCMP file that, according to Mr. Lesage, called Mr. Vachon a security risk.

Mr. Vachon is president of the Quebec Provincial Police Association, which is about to strike.

Leaders Bow To Pray

OTTAWA (CP) — Political wrangles and scandals were forgotten Wednesday as 200 MPs, senators and government officials prayed together at the third annual national prayer breakfast.

Rev. Denton Massey of Waterloo, Ont., exhorted political leaders to become more conscious of the dignity of man and their great responsibilities.

OTHERS LOWERED
Man was made to be good, honorable and noble, but too many were inclined to think of God in their own selfish image, he said. "Leaders cannot lower themselves without lowering others."

A cousin of former Gov.-Gen. Vincent Massey, he retired from politics in 1949 after serving for 14 years as Conservative MP for Toronto Greenwood and was ordained an Anglican priest in 1960.

SCRIPTURES READ
Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker shook hands for photographers before the breakfast and both were called on to read passages from the scriptures.

Prayers were offered by Commons Speaker Lucien Lamoureux, Senate Speaker Sydney Smith and Milton Klein (L.-Montreal Carleton).

Corner Cop Packs Trouble

By ROBERT J. DONOVAN

WASHINGTON, D.C. (LAT) — A deep current of uneasiness about relations between Negroes and the police forces of American cities and towns was evident in the discussions today at the White House conference on civil rights.

This is a real powder keg in American society," Roy Wilkins, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said.

Wilkins told reporters during the conference in the Sheraton Park Hotel that tensions between Negroes and the police could trigger serious outbreaks of disorder.

MOST POLICE THE SAME

"I am not confining it to Watts," he said, "because most police, like most landlords, are the same everywhere."

Dean Louis H. Pollak of Yale law school opened a panel on the administration of justice by referring to the Watts situation as the "rather dismal news story from Los Angeles."

As a lawyer, he said, he would not prejudice an incident 3,000 miles away, but he posed this question: What if Leonard Deadwyler, the Negro who was shot dead in Watts on May 7, had been white and the white police officer who shot him, Jerald M. Bova, had been a Negro? Six out of 9 members of a coroner's jury in Los Angeles on Tuesday called the shooting "accidental homicide."

DANGER SEEN

In his opening address Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey warned against "heavy-handed" retaliation against many Negroes because of disorders caused by a few.

"Today," he said, "there are Americans, many of them law enforcement officials, who quite properly see a danger to law and order in the flaring of anger and the release of tightly coiled tensions by the Americans who live in our squalid ghettos."

EXTREMISTS WRONG

"But they would compound the danger by responding, not with even-handed justice to the few, but with heavy-handed, indiscriminate retaliation against the many. And today there are other Americans who see in the struggle for freedom and equality a licence for irresponsibility and violence. They are both wrong — tragically, explosively wrong."

Dean Pollak told the panel on the administration of justice that the whole question of the role of police officers in modern society needs to be re-examined.

Marshall

Lawmakers

Can Aid Equality

WASHINGTON (AP) — Solicitor-General Thurgood Marshall took issue Wednesday night with "the old refrain that one cannot legislate equality."

Laws, Marshall told the White House conference on civil rights, "not only provide concrete benefits, they can even change the hearts of men—some men, anyway—for good or evil."

STUDY PROMISED

Marshall, who argued the landmark school desegregation case before the Supreme Court more than a decade ago, spoke before the huge conference after it resolved some opening parliamentary squabbles and began study of a multi-billion-dollar proposal to bring the U.S. Negro up to par in jobs, housing, schools and justice.

President Johnson meanwhile, promised prompt and thorough consideration of whatever resolutions come out of the conference. He told newspapermen the civil rights situation is one "we think desperately needs attention."

Woman Injured

A woman fractured her right leg when her car hit a telephone pole on Hillside near Grosvenor Wednesday morning.

Kathleen Harris, 1445 Arlington, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital also suffering from lacerations to both legs and her right elbow.

In a second Wednesday morning accident, Kelly Lee, 5, of 1088 Balmoral, was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital suffering from shock and abrasions.

He was crossing Blanshard at North Park and was struck by a car driven by Angus MacDonald, 4091 Longview.

While he did not favor turning the police into "social workers," he thought there had to be a reassessment of the conduct of the policeman on the street corner.

One Negro woman delegate arose and said that there should be a White House conference on police conduct.

The expression "police brutality" as used by Negroes nowadays applies to much more than beatings. Much more commonly it applies to arrests for loitering and for failure to "move on" and things of that nature.

Charles A. Horsky, adviser to the president on District of Columbia affairs, suggested in the Pollak Panel the abolition of laws allowing police to stop and arrest for "investigation," which he called "a harassment to minorities." He suggested a new look at loitering and "move on" statutes, which often, he said, produce community tensions.

Horsky also urged a review of laws allowing police to stop and frisk a person. These laws, he cautioned, are "a perpetual insult to Negroes." He noted that police would not lightly stop and frisk a well dressed white person "because such a person would get a lawyer and have the policeman called to account."

'B.C. Craziest'

PENTICTON (CP) — Provincial archivist Willard Ireland says B.C. is "the craziest province in Canada" — and British Columbians are the only ones who can recognize it. Studying the past, he said it was "amazing we have any kind of government here at all." He also told delegates to the B.C. Chamber of Commerce convention that unless B.C. comes up with other centennial projects than concrete sculptures, the celebration will be a failure. He said the rich heritage should also be observed in the inheritance, said Mr. Ireland.

Lawson was the driver of a car Dec. 28 which hit and killed another Duncan man Donald O'Scott.

Crisis Meet For Labor

Provincial labor leaders will meet in Vancouver June 19 to discuss the increasing number of labor crises in B.C.

E. T. Staley, acting secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor, told Victoria Labor Council Wednesday that the federation would be discussing the number of wage claims throughout the province and seeing if they could be settled without strike action.

Report Under Wraps

The Hartick-Downey report on the administration of the Greater Victoria School District will go before the school board June 17 and 18.

The report, outcome of a five-month, independent study by UBC professors Lorne Downey and Walter Hartick, will be discussed informally by the researchers at two closed meetings, said Mr. Porteous, and released.

Support of a $30,000 burn treatment centre at St. Joseph's Hospital would make an excellent centennial project, Victoria Labor council was told Wednesday.

The treatment centre would be one of the first in B.C.

Dr. Paul Gareau, hospital burn specialist, told the council that the unit would cost $30,000, of which $40,000 would have to be raised by outside donations.

Eastern Canadian folk singer Peter Chipman will make his first western appearance at Jon York's Music Hall, below the Century Inn, this weekend.

Shows start Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m.

Saur-Tut-El, Tamo-Paul and Bonaparte Scotland The Brave will entertain the young patients at Queen Alexandra Solarium Sunday.

They are all stallions, an Arabian owned by Aubrey Temblett, a quarterhorse owned by A. W. Mesher and an Appaloosa owned by Floyd Adams.

The entertainment is being given by Victoria Western Horsemen's Club.

Sidney council will have to iron out its own personnel problems, Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell said Wednesday.

He said the department would not hold an inquiry into the recent dismissal of deputy village clerk Glenn Fell, who was laid off for "economy reasons."

A charge of unfair business practices in the microfilming business has deferred Greater Victoria School Board's plans to modernize its record-keeping.

Trustee Peter Bunn made the statement after the board was told that only one firm is being considered for supplying equipment.

Lieutenant Governor Pearkes will leave June 13 on his annual week-long tour of isolated B.C. coastal communities.

Mr. Pearkes will fly to Prince Rupert by service aircraft to meet the destroyer escort HMCS Yukon, which will take him on his visit.

The week will be taken up with salutes, sail-pasts of Indian seiners and canoes, potlatches and receptions.

Toastrn a t e r s International will hold their annual conference in Victoria June 10 and 11. Delegates are expected from B.C. and the Yukon, Alaska, Washington, Oregon, Utah, Idaho, Nevada and Northern California.

Theme of the conference at the Empress Hotel will be 100 years in Communications.

Commissioning ceremonies bringing the former naval gate vessel Port de la Reine back into service as a reserve training ship were held Wednesday at HMC Dockyard.

The 126-foot training vessel, which had been laid up for 11 years, will be used to teach young reserve sailors from as far back as Winnipeg the art of going to sea and not falling overboard.

She is to be used during the summer training program and during the winter will be shared by the reserve training units in Vancouver and Victoria.

The Good Citizenship Award of the Native Sons Lodge of B.C., Victoria post, will be made June 18.

five navy whalers taking part in the round-the-Gulf Islands race within striking distance of the finish line in Esquimalt Wednesday, but the fifth whaler, from HMCS Saskatchewan, broke her rudder.

The harbor craft overseeing the race will inspect the damage this morning to determine whether the whale can go on.

Sail leading the field is the lone entry from the ocean escort HMCS Sussexvale, with a two-mile lead. She is camped in Maple Bay. The other three contenders are camped on Kuper Island, within half a mile of each other. The crippled whaler is at Yellow Point.

The navy reported Wednesday night that if the same favorable winds blew today, the whalers could well make it back to Esquimalt this evening, one day early. The five whalers left harbor Monday.

Wires Explode, Blocks Blackened

Hottest Kite in Town

By JERRY BOULTBEE

Gino Bressau doesn't want to go fly a kite again — ever. He was flying one for his little three-year-old daughter Bonnie Wednesday evening, a bright, shiny metal, unfailingly one.

From his balcony, under power lines, the kite touched one of the insulators for the wires and all hell broke loose.

"It was like fireworks going off," said Mrs. Claire Laing, Mr. Bressau's landlady at 316 Moss.

"I'm still shaking," she said, two hours after a 12,000-volt power line came crashing down across her lawn and driveway, and across the sidewalk in front of her home.

Mr. Bressau said he had no idea a kite could do that — and added that he thought the wires should have been better insulated.

As children scampered for safety from the hot sparks at the end of the wire, the head cracked the pavement and ignited some bushes in Mrs. Laing's garden — a large chunk of the Fairfield district was blacked out.

Police and firemen would go nowhere near the hot wire until B.C. Hydro officials arrived on the scene.

And as the wire sparked and blazed, suddenly a transformer on another pole nearby exploded, and more wires came down on the street.

"I was terrified," said Mrs. Laing, who was getting ready to go out for the evening.

"Thank God there was no one on the street at the time."

A spokesman for B.C.

Hydro said Mr. Bressau's action was "extremely dangerous."

"We try our best to warn people of the danger of kites in the vicinity of power lines — but we usually direct our efforts in this regard to children."

The spokesman said it seemed "incredible" that an adult should have been responsible.

Asked Mr. Bressau: "Do you think they're going to send me the bill for all this?"

Hydro's answer to this: "Liability will certainly be looked into. Usually in cases where someone is responsible for damage done to Hydro property, a charge is made."

The entire area knocked out by Mr. Bressau's kite was back to normal by 9 p.m. Electric clocks in the vicinity had stopped dead at 6:20 p.m.

Area affected is bounded by Moss, Cook, Richardson and May — a total of 23 blocks.

Mr. Bressau said a Hydro official had confiscated his kite.

Almost-Double School Costs
Price of Victoria's BoomTotem Pole
Shown Today

Fourth of the 25 totem poles on the Totem Route will be unveiled at 11 a.m. Saturday by Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis. The public is invited to the ceremony at Bute Street and Trans-Canada Highway.

Saanich's totem pole was carved by Chief We-Shakes Charles Dudoard of Port Simpson, B.C.

Mrs. Henry Hunt has arranged for members of the Kwakwaka'wakw tribe of Victoria to attend and present a program of songs and dances.

Special visitor will be Chief Johnnie Hunt, 84, who came down from Kelsey Bay for the occasion.

Greater Victoria School Board got a bill Wednesday for the city's increasing population density and general inflation.

The board awarded a $520,000 contract for construction of 16-room Newton elementary school at Richmond and Newton in the Saanich peninsula.

Two years ago the cost was estimated at $341,900.

When it opens in September, 1967, the school will replace nearby Richmond elementary and ease the pressure on Oaklands, Uplands, Willows and Bank Street schools.

A trend to apartment living in recent years has produced more children in the same old residential areas. A recent garden apartment development intensified the pressure on Richmond elementary.

Two temporary classrooms will be added to Richmond school this fall; in 1967 it will become a part of adjacent Lansdowne junior high.

Lower of two tenders was submitted by C. J. Oliver Ltd. of Vancouver. It bid $520,422, compared with $539,649 by G. H. Wheaton Ltd. of Victoria.

A supplementary referendum passed last March gave the school board $575,000 to pay for the school. With contingency funds it raised this total to $585,000.

Though the school finally costs $520,000 the board expects to stay within its budget by means of a rebate of the federal sales tax on building materials.

Pancake Feast

A public pancake feast organized by the St. Beaver Kiwanis Club will be held from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Friday at the Golden Slipper Ballroom, 1118 Broad.

Student Parking

Board Asks
Cost Split

By BILL STAVDAI

Greater Victoria School Board Wednesday moved to seek provincial government help in easing a growing parking problem around senior high schools.

It passed a resolution asking the department of education to share 50-50 the cost of providing student parking lots.

ROW FLARED

The resolution, sponsored by Trustee Peter Bunn, will likely help settle a row over student parking which flared a week ago between the board and Saanich municipal council.

Saanich sought to legislate off-street parking at the proposed Reynolds Road junior-senior high school at the rate of one parking space for every 10 pupils.

TAXPAYERS WOULD PAY

The board replied that the government would not share the cost of student parking areas. Taxpayers of the school district would have to pay the whole amount, the board pointed out.

The board's new resolution asks the B.C. School Trustees' Association to seek an amendment to the Public Schools Construction Act.

It asks "provision for off-street parking in accord with municipal zoning regulations in that school district."

MEETING SET

Greater Victoria School Board will ask the endorsement of other Island boards at a meeting here June 11. The resolution will then go before the BCSTA next fall.

Meantime, Trustees Bunn, George Curran and Dr. Donald Sharling are scheduled to discuss the parking issue with Saanich councilors June 16 at Saanich municipal hall.

Special

Opened

Amid praise from the provincial department of education, Greater Victoria School Board chairman John Porteous Wednesday officially opened the district's $128,000 Victor Street school for retarded children.

The building, at Victor and Denman, will open for classes this fall, with six teaching areas designed to accommodate 60 youngsters.

INSTITUTION AVOIDED

The honey wood-and-plaster building was designed to avoid an institutional air. One washroom even has a bathtub.

Franklin P. Levins, provincial superintendent of education, declared:

"The board of school trustees can be justifiably proud of what they have done."

MANY LEAVE TODAY

He recalled that 10 years ago only about 100 B.C. retarded children were being trained in private schools run by local organizations and unsupported by government.

Now about 1,000 trainable youngsters are attending school.

Donna, Robert and freshly-bathed patient

Boy Turns Home
Into Haven
For Menagerie

If a hurt bird finds itself anywhere near 1636 McMoran Avenue, its problems are solved.

There lives 11-year-old Robert House, the boy bird-doctor. Sharing the home are his patient mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Donald House, and a seven-year-old sister, Donna, a dog, a cat and a convalescent robin.

The count is low at the moment. Recently it also included a second robin and a pheasant. Tadpoles and salamanders are frequent residents, "and we're cricketed to death every fall," said his mother, Gwyneth.

This sort of thing has been going on since Robert was four or five, and he used to embarrass his mother by stopping everything on downtown sidewalks to watch ants on the pavement, or bugs in the gutter.

"He has a little incubator in the basement where he tries to hatch eggs from abandoned nests," Mrs. House said. "He's never managed to."

Still, there are enough live birds in trouble to keep him busy.

The recent pheasant is an example. Robert found it stunned, nursed it a few days and then waved it goodbye. His first robin of this season likewise flew when it was ready. The current patient may go the same way soon.

It was found trapped in blackberry thorns, with a hurt wing. Now it gets its fill of fresh-dug worms, regular baths in the kitchen sink, and sits on the edge of Robert's cereal bowl and helps him eat the cornflakes.

Robert isn't the only boy nursing robins. His chum Ricky Wilson, 9, had one up until Tuesday that would ride along on his shoulder. Then it took off for the trees with an air of finality.

Only Wednesday night, Mr. and Mrs. House took Robert to a ball game on the university campus. He found a baby killdeer. They made him put it back.

Olson

Strathcona's Barney Olson Dies at 70

Hotelier Started with $4

Barney Olson came to Victoria in 1912 with $4 in his pocket. When he died Wednesday after a long career in the transportation business, he was the owner of the Strathcona Hotel.

Born in Milltown, Wis., 70 years ago, he was raised on the farm of his Danish pioneer father. As a boy there was no type of work he wouldn't tackle. He worked on the farm and he ran a trapline.

At 15 he left school and drove teams of horses in lumber camp in winter, worked on the railroad in summer. He worked as a farm laborer in North Dakota, to put himself through an automobile training school in Minneapolis.

Soon afterward he came to B.C. to join his brother, Henry. When he became chauffeur to the late, Charles Spratt, manager of Victoria Machinery Depot, he picked up his nickname, after the racing driver, Barney Oldfield.

By 1918 he had bought an interest in a taxi and sightseeing company. A year later he bought out his partners.

Then began a career in transportation which took him to Spokane, Seattle and finally, in 1935, to Winnipeg. During this time he was part owner of Circle Tours, Inland Transportation Company, Seattle Grey Line and Greyhound Line, as well as others.

He came back to Victoria in 1940 to retire, but was soon busy as an arena commissioner. At various times he was interested in an airway, a miniature golf course and a roller rink.

For a time he was interested in the Malaspina Hotel in Nanaimo and later bought the Strathcona Hotel.

Harold Benjamin Olson is survived by his wife, Mary, at the residence, 1476 Beach; two sons, Keith and John, both of Victoria; eight grandchildren; two brothers, R. S. (Speed) of Victoria and C. H. of Vancouver, Wash.

Funeral service will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday in McCall Bros. Chapel, with Rev. R. B. Salter officiating.

Magistrate Judges Peristeronic Case

Frank Beggars Very Dear to Owners

By BRIAN DOHERTY

A pigeon is not just another bird. To a pigeon fancier, it is more than a pet. To Magistrate William Oster, pigeons were the subject Wednesday of a lengthy and learned judgment.

The subject came up in central magistrate's court Wednesday when Rodney Kercher was convicted of possession of stolen property — six registered pigeons worth about $400.

Magistrate Oster, in his judgment, observed that "these peristeronic proceedings" commenced with the disappearance of the birds from the loft of Walter Gallop, 1719 Carrick. "They were found two days later by police in a pen at the home of Kercher, 2526 Scott."

Magistrate Oster said the birds' disappearance could not be explained by "normal pigeon activity — exercise, feeding, romantic inclination and so on."

He continued: "At first blush, this might appear as something of an exaggerated flutter in a dove-coat."

"While to the uninitiated, a pigeon is probably just a pigeon, a somewhat bothersome bird seen on street corners and building ledges frankly soliciting food, to a pigeon fancier they mean a great deal more.

"Obviously there is a close bond between them and their birds."

Commenting on testimony that Kercher and two juveniles were catching pigeons to sell them to a Chinese man at $2 a bird, Magistrate Oster said:

"The youths aggravated the situation by saying they were going to sell them to a segment of the community which fancies them as a food — a prospective fate which undoubtedly aroused in the owner a horror usually reserved for the gastronomical activities of cannibals, having regard to the way he regarded pigeons."

Evidence was also given that the group removed the registration bands from the birds, and that the bands could not be replaced, considerably lowering the value of the birds.

Magistrate Oster observed: "When the bands are removed, the bird is, in a sense, deflowered."

The pigeons had been produced in court during a hearing last week, but were excused from appearing Wednesday.

Kercher was remanded to June 11 for a pre-sentence report.

Junior Chapters Increase

MONTREAL (CP) — Mrs. Hugh G. Robertson, assistant organizational secretary of the Imperial Order Daughters of The Empire, says the extensive efforts are being made to recruit junior members.

She told the annual meeting there had been quite a few junior chapters when the order was founded in 1900. Interest had waned, "but now it is really building up again."

"Six new chapters were formed during the past year and another 200 members were added, bringing the total to some 700."

Members are between 13 and 18 years of age and this year they have undertaken their first national project—sending books to the Caribbean island of Dominica.

Mrs. Robertson said a junior chapter seminar, held for the first time last year through the Ontario provincial chapter and the federal government, had done a great deal to encourage new members.

This year one member from each club will be sent to Alberta for a similar tour and seminar.

Miss Arlath Glassford, whose marriage takes place June 4, was honored recently at a luncheon given by the Warren Gardens home of the former.

CARNE REBEKAH

Came Rebekah Lodge No. 45 will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in the 100F Hall-Official visit of Sequim and Port Townsend, Wash. Lodges.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a teen-ager who has the usual problems but nothing I can't handle. I'm writing to ask you a personal question about your work.

Doesn't it tear you up when people write letters about nutty stuff like a neighbor who empties the garbage wearing slippers or a mother-in-law whose false teeth click during church services? I should think you'd get so fed up on petty complaints that you'd like to chuck the whole business.

How can people be upset by such trifles when there is so much real suffering in the world? Why don't you tell the whiners and the cryers to jump into the lake?—BRICKTOP

Dear Brick: No lake could handle 'em, dearie, besides, I don't mind when people write about penny ante problems because I know that many of them are letting off steam. Often they close by saying, "Thanks for listening. I feel a lot better already."

You'd be surprised if you knew how much real courage there is in this world. Many ordinary, every-day folks deserve a medal for just getting through the day. Yet they never think of themselves as heroes. They feel they are just doing what is expected of them.

One of the useful aspects of this column is that it makes people realize that their own problems aren't so rough after they read what goes on in the lives of others.

Dear Ann Landers: It was my first visit to Mrs. R. It's funny I was invited to play bridge.

When I arrived a four-year-old boy opened the door. Mrs. R. was seated in another room, waiting with two other guests. When she saw me she didn't even get up. She pointed to a closet and said, "Put your coat in there." I picked the wrong closet and was embarrassed when I was told not to put my coat in with the family's, but to use "the other one."

When I returned, Mrs. R. was deep in conversation with the two women. After a few minutes she said, "Let's play bridge." She never did actually say hello to me.

I was uncomfortable the whole evening and wonder if I made a mountain out of a molehill, as my husband suggested.—JANICE

Dear Janice: Molerith, my eye. The hostess was unspeakably rude. If you ever go to her house again you must be awfully hard up for a card game.

Dear Ann Landers: The reason I never married (I am 29 years old) is because I have never fallen in love. Now I have met a woman I do want to marry — although I am not starry-eyed, no bells are ringing and my knees don't turn to water when I'm in her presence.

Zelda is 35 and is madly in love with me. We get along beautifully and I feel like a million dollars when I am with her. Why? Because I've never had a woman so crazy about me, so eager to please, and so doggone considerate of my feelings.

My father is a minister. He says he was not in love with my mother when they married, but he admired and respected her and their relationship has flowered and matured into a wonderful thing. My father says if I pass up this girl I am foolish. What do you say?—J

Dear J.: I say your clergyman gave you good advice. Take it.

No B.C. Brief To Meeting In Victoria

Premier Bennett said Wednesday British Columbia would not present a brief during the two-day premiers' conference to be held in the legislative chamber June 16 and 17.

"We are the hosts; this is good will," he said. "They are here to help us with our centennial."

The conference will deal with the question of university finances, but Mr. Bennett said other topics would probably be discussed.

SHIPS CONSIDERED

"The main thing is the importance of the conference being held in B.C. This is an example of co-operative federalism at its best."

The premier said he would discuss the question of federal shipbuilding policies with Prime Minister Pearson, but that this would not be brought up at the conference itself.

TOUR SCHEDULED

The visiting dignitaries will tour the Butchart Gardens and have lunch there on the morning of Thursday, June 16.

They will return to the city about 2 p.m. and travel in a motorcade down Douglas, Fort and Government Streets, arriving at the legislative buildings about 2:45 p.m.

CEREMONY PUBLIC

The prime minister and premiers will be greeted on the front steps of the legislative buildings by Premier Bennett, and move inside for the opening ceremony at 3 p.m., which will be open to the public.

Prime Minister Pearson will preside as chairman, and each of Canada's 10 premiers will give a short speech. The opening session will adjourn at 5:30 p.m.

WORK SESSION SET

The visiting dignitaries and their wives will be guests of the province at a dinner in the Empress ballroom at 7:30 p.m. the same day.

Friday will be devoted to a working session, closed to press and the general public. The premiers will meet in the legislative chamber at 9:30 a.m. and adjourn for lunch at 12:30 p.m. They will sit again from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m.

MEETING MAY CONTINUE

The prime minister and premiers and their wives will be guests of Lieutenant-Governor Peakes and Mrs. Peakes at Government House at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

It is understood that the premiers' conference may continue through Saturday morning if the business to be discussed is not finished during the Friday sittings.

Island Woman Russia-Bound

COURTENAY — Mrs. Robert McPhee is one of six women chosen to travel to the Soviet Union this summer.

Mrs. McPhee and her travelling companions were chosen at the national convention of the Voice of Women held last week at University of British Columbia.

While in Russia they will be guests of the Soviet Women's Committee.

No other details are available regarding the cities to be visited or the type of trips and visits to be made by the Canadian group.

Picnicker Walked Too Far

GRAND FORKS (CP) — Mrs. Pierre Tambellini, 25, was found safe Tuesday after two rainy nights and one day alone in the bush 10 miles north of this south-central B.C. community.

Mrs. Tambellini, of Trail, said she wasn't really lost, but wandered too far from a picnic site Sunday at the north end of Christina Lake.

"I found I was too far away to get back by dark, so I sheltered in a cabin," she said. "It was cold."

ANNOUNCEMENT

Last week we provided the fashions for the show at the McPherson Playhouse on behalf of the B.C. Cancer Fund. Inevitably, some of them got very slightly soiled, so we have decided to reduce all of them by 10% to 25%. This is an outstanding opportunity for those who understand and appreciate fashion.

Also, we are clearing our entire stock of spring COATS and SUITS with minimum reductions of 25%. Again, an opportunity which should not be missed.

Locked Door No Barrier

A man who burst through a door held closed by a Yale lock and a night chain Tuesday night couldn't remember anything about it when he appeared in central magistrate's court Wednesday.

John Gagnon, 330 Southgate, told the court he must be guilty because "I'm here." Charged with forcible entry and assault, he said he could not remember the incident.

Constable Leslie Huckin said Gagnon was refused entrance to a suite below his where his wife was.

SLAPPINGS

He broke through the locked door, slapped the tenant and then "slapped his wife around the apartment," Constable Huckin said.

It took two constables about 20 minutes to restrain him, court was told.

Gagnon was remanded to June 9 for a pre-sentence report.

Klara Hauzer was a thoroughly dishonest woman who cast her child in the role of a four-year-old Fagin, said Magistrate William Ostler.

Mrs. Hauzer, 424 Moss, had pleaded guilty last week to stealing three balls, three sets of girls' underwear, and a wallet from the Bay on May 7.

She had been convicted previously for shoplifting and also warned, Magistrate Ostler said.

Only the fact that she had four children saved her from going to jail, he said.

Mrs. Hauzer was fined $150.

Brian Dale McMillan, 175 Bushby, will be committed Friday to stand trial on a charge of criminal negligence causing the death of Daniel Watson George, April 22.

Defence counsel Kenneth Murphy did not call any evidence in the preliminary hearing before Magistrate Ostler.

McMillan, who has also been charged with impaired driving, was involved in an accident on Esquimalt Road in which Mr. George was crushed between two cars.

A woman walking along a street fell and lay hysterical on the ground when a four-month-old dog bounded across the street to see her pet.

The owner of the pup, Ben Eddison, 3258 Maple, pleaded guilty to allowing a dog to be at large. He was fined $15.

Magistrate Ostler agreed there was no suggestion the dog was dangerous or meant any harm to the woman.

Gordon McKay, already serving a six-month sentence for false pretences, was jailed for another two months after he pleaded guilty to two charges of gaining lodgings by fraud.

Court was told that McKay, 2665 Florence Lake Road, wrote worthless cheques of $16 and $8 for lodgings at the Campbell River Lodge April 2 and May 2.

Robert McArthur, 105 Island Highway, was placed on a suspended sentence and $250 bond for a year for assaulting his 15-year-old son, Robert.

McArthur had been found guilty of the assault last week. Court was told then the boy received bruising from what his father called a "leathering."

Eric Watts, 1233 Oxford, gave a breathalyzer reading of .17 per cent after police stopped him April 24.

He pleaded guilty to impaired driving and was fined $350. His licence was suspended for four months except for business purposes.

James Bangay, 1181 View, was fined $300 and his licence was suspended for four months when he was found guilty of impaired driving.

Bangay mounted a curb on Johnson near Broad April 29. He gave a breathalyzer reading of .14 per cent.

Chlorination

To Cost Less

LADYSMITH — Chlorination of the water supply here will be far less costly than anticipated at first, Mayor Kay Grouhel told council Monday night.

Originally town council estimated it would cost about $10,000 for the necessary installation and equipment.

In reply to a query from the council, the board of public health stated in a letter, filtering of the water supply would not be as effective as chlorination and it is hoped the chlorination system will be in operation later this summer.

Herbert Hoover, U.S. president from 1929 to 1933, was awarded more than 80 honorary degrees.

Rape, Westerns Indicate Failure

Canada is the 1960s must provide twice the facilities for higher education as it has done in all of its previous history, Dr. Malcolm Taylor, president of the Municipal Officers' Association of B.C., which wound up a three-day convention here.

All present problems arose from failure to invest in human resources and if it was costly to correct this situation, it was far more so to let it continue, the educator told delegates to the Municipal Officers' Association of B.C., which wound up a three-day convention here.

"We are paying for it right now. We are paying in loss of job opportunities and lack of fulfillment," said Dr. Taylor.

"We are paying in unemployment, in blunders in government policies, in delinquency, rape, murder, juke boxes, westerns and cup-and-robbers on TV. These are all results of ignorance," Dr. Taylor said.

The cost of a military defeat was death and tyranny, and for that reason great sums had to be spent on preparedness, but one heard little or no criticism of this cost.

The penalties paid for failure to invest in employment and in sickness prevention were massive, and so in these fields money was spent with little criticism.

But in education, with inevitable increasing taxation, there was constant sniping, the speaker said. Still, it was a cost that would have to be borne to maintain and improve standards — and this had to be done to survive in today's world.

There were five major considerations which govern the world and how it will evolve, said Dr. Taylor.

One was the explosion of knowledge which, for the first time in history, was doubling every decade. Universities today were only preparatory schools for living and should stress creative thinking rather than learning by rote.

The scientific revolution is accompanied by a revolution in "mass expectation". This meant the less fortunate of the world were learning for the first time what they had to have to be resolved without missed. They demanded not war, which was generally recognized as annihilation.

Change was ever present and could not be halted. What must be done was to foresee it and channel it, he said.

Garden Notes

He's No Hillbilly

By M. V. CHESNUT
My neighbor, Ernie, took his wife and family for a drive last Sunday through some of the new subdivisions that border the city. Admiring some of the new homes, they stopped to take a closer look at a perfect gem of a ranch-style bungalow — a house with lovely lines, as modern as tomorrow, straight out of the pages of one of the slick "House and Garden" magazines.
The thing that took Ernie's eye, though, was not so much the house itself as the front garden. Instead of a lawn, the new owner had planted up the whole of the front part of his property with a thriving crop of potatoes!

here and now that "the guy" was no hillbilly, but probably a sophisticated and clever gardener. Rather than slapping down sod on a site inadequately prepared for lawn, he was taking his time and making sure of a well-looked and weed-free plot. Seed or sod will go down in late summer after the potatoes are lifted, and with every chance of developing into a really fine trouble-free lawn.
It isn't at all uncommon, where a lawn is to go in on virgin soil, to grow potatoes for one season first. Potatoes have earned for themselves a reputation as an excellent "cleaning" crop, leaving the soil beautifully tilled and free from weeds, and while it must take considerable moral stamina to plant spuds out front, there is no more certain way to a good lawn. I don't doubt but that the owner of that swanky home is taking considerable ribbing from his fashionable neighbors, but I think the last laugh will be his.

Incidentally, the major improvement in the soil is brought about, not by any virtues inherent in the potato plant itself, but simply because potatoes must be cultivated more frequently than any other common crop. It isn't the potato plant that does the trick, at least not to any great extent, but the blood, sweat and tears of the grower.
First, you see, the plot must be plowed or dug over ready for planting. Then the potato rows must be hoed constantly throughout the growing season, scuffling off weeds and pulling earth up around the plants. Finally, the plot must be forked over very thoroughly in the process of lifting the matured crop. After all this working, the soil need only be leveled and rolled, and it is ready for seed or sod.
It is true that the roots of the potato plant help break up the soil, particularly on heavy soil, and the spreading habit of the plant helps smother weeds, but the chief ingredient is still old-fashioned elbow grease.

ART BUCHWALD and the Ultimate Merger

What's Good for S & D...

WASHINGTON—Every time you pick up the newspaper you read about one company merging with another company. Of course, there are laws to protect competition in the United States, but one can't help thinking that, if the trend continues, the whole country will soon be merged into one large company.
It is 1978 and by this time every company west of the Mississippi will have merged into one giant corporation known as the Samson Securities. Every company east of the Mississippi will have merged under an umbrella corporation known as the Delilah Company.
It is inevitable that one day the chairman of the board of Samson and the president of Delilah would meet and discuss merging their two companies.
"If we could get together," the president of Delilah said, "we would be able to finance your projects and you would be able to finance ours."
"Exactly what I was thinking," the chairman of Samson said. "Our only chance of survival in this country is to diversify, and if we merged, we wouldn't have to worry about unfair competition. I propose we trade our stock one share for one and set up the Samson and Delilah Corporation. Together, we'll own the United States."
"That's a great idea and it certainly will make every one's life less complicated."
The men shook on it and then they sought out approval from the anti-trust division of the Justice Department.
At first the head of the anti-trust division indicated that he might have reservations about allowing the only two companies left in the United States to merge.

"Our department," he said, "will take a close look at this proposed merger. It is our job to further competition in private business and industry, and if we allow Samson and Delilah to merge we may be doing the customer a disservice."
The chairman of Samson protested vigorously that merging with Delilah would not stifle competition, but would help it. "The public will be the true beneficiary of this merger," he said. "The larger we are, the more services we can perform, and the lower prices we can charge."
The president of Delilah backed him up. "In the Communist system the people don't have a choice. They must buy from the state. In our capitalist society the people can buy from either the Samson Company or the Delilah Company."
"But if you merge," someone pointed out, "there will be only one company left in the United States."
"Exactly," said the president of Delilah. "Thank God for the free enterprise system."
The anti-trust division of the Justice Department studied the merger for months. Finally the Attorney-General made his ruling. "While we find some drawbacks to only one company being left in the United States, we feel the advantages to the public far outweigh the disadvantages.
"Therefore, we're making an exception in this case and allowing Samson and Delilah to merge."
"I would also like to announce that the Samson and Delilah Company is now negotiating at the White House with the President to buy the United States. The Justice Department will naturally study this merger to see if it violates any of our strong anti-trust laws."

Beware Labels

SYDNEY HARRIS

Perhaps the most dangerous thing that anyone can do is to take one word and try to construct a philosophy out of it. Life is too large, and too various, to fit into even the most exalted word.
Throughout the ages, the words "Reason" and "Faith" have been the rallying cries of different factions. I am convinced, from my reading of history, that neither of these words alone is sufficient as a philosophy of life.
The French Revolution was based on "Reason" but reason soon ran wild, and the reasonable men of France suddenly found themselves committed to unspeakable tyranny.
As vile as the despotism they had rebelled against.
Today we hear a great deal about "Faith." But faith alone is not a way of life, any more than reason is. Faith in Hitler encouraged Nazism; faith in the plausible nonsense of the Marxist bible brought about the cruel totalitarianism of the Russians, and Chinese Communist states.
Man is a creature of both reason and faith; these are, so to speak, like a pair of scissors that must work together to accomplish any constructive purpose. Take one blade away and the other is merely beating the air, aimlessly and often harmfully.
Likewise, a merely "reasonable" approach to society does not contain the moral fervor and spiritual strength to resist corruption and compromise with the truth. Man's unaided intellect is not strong enough to cope with the problem of evil, of vanity, of self-seeking; only faith can provide this added support.

Reason must be pushed as far as it can go; only then may faith take over. The former may not be pushed too far, nor may the latter be used too soon. We have been given both reason and faith to move together with, just as we have been given two legs. The devout person who lets his leg of reason atrophy is as ineffectual toward his gift of God as the atheist who amputates the limb of faith.

Star Fillies Scarce

SHEILAH GRAHAM

They talk about a shortage of eligible young men in Hollywood, but there aren't many available to young women either. This remark is prompted by an observation about Frank Sinatra re-dating Miss Fawcett. "It's because he has not found a replacement for her," someone close to the situation assured me. Who is there in the young lady line—Natalie Wood, Jill St. John, who had her fling with Frankie and doesn't seem to want an encore, and Faye Dunaway. There was Ann-Margret, but she is engaged to Roger Smith. So you can see that the field of fillies is rather limited.
Rod Stelger stars for EMI London in 39 Witnesses, the story of the people in Queens, Long Island, who did not help the woman who was murdered, although they heard her screams. Martin Landau, in relation to Eli, will play the murderer. With Sidney Lumet directing and Henry Winkler producing. They are all in New York where the picture will be made. And now that Mayer Lansky has cut a lot of the red tape, as regards permits for movie-makers, you can expect many more film productions in New York City.

It was a certainty that Melina Mercouri and Jules Dassin would turn a friendship into a marriage—they took out the banns way back in January—on the 18th of the month. Eighteen is their lucky number. Melina was born on the 18th of October, 46 years ago. Dassin somewhat longer ago on the 18th of December. They met on May 18, 1955. Their big hit, Never on Sunday, was first shown on the 18th of a month I have forgotten. And, as you know, they were married in Switzerland this month—on the 18th, of course.
Vanessa Redgrave is the hit of this year as Julie Christie was of last. In addition to her successful play in the West End of London, The Prime of Miss Brodie, Vanessa, who used to be more famous for her speeches in Trafalgar Square, is also starring in Antonioni's first movie in English. It's about a photographer and the beautiful girls who model for him. Terence Stamp was the director's choice for the male lead. As you know, Miss Redgrave, the hit of Morgan, will also be starring in Camelot.

Hate a Need?

DR. STUART ROSENBERG

Man, we have been taught, infant, he will not be able to separate his love from his hate. He is pained by the frustration that comes when his love is gratified; he suffers from the harsh hurt of the hate that follows. As infants, our loves and our desires are coupled to hatred and destructiveness.
However, as we grow older, we can learn new techniques whereby we can love without hating. Yet, we are often tempted to fall back upon our infantile mannerisms; so we protect our own love by hating others.
This happens principally to those who have sought love and have not found it. The hateful man is always the unloved man; he is a grown-up version of the loving-hating-infant.
As long as the infant is an admitted their dislike for the vicious "Danireans," "Firreans" and "Wallorians?"

Clearly, prejudices and hates exist not because we have had bad experiences with certain people or groups, but rather because we walk around as adults with the tell-tale signs of our childhood still showing: we retain our infantile need to hate somebody.
If we were loved more by those whom we really want to love, we would have less need to hate those we never — indeed, could never — have even met.
Racial antagonism and religious prejudice are not caused by the hated minorities, but by under-developed, unloved majorities who refuse to outgrow their childhood.
A recent study makes this so very clear. It points out the irritating fact that racial prejudice, for example, occurs in certain people simply because of their primitive need to hate.
An experiment recently listed three non-existent groups together with scores of other minorities. Those studied were asked to pick out the names of the groups that they disliked — disliked so intensely that they were willing to advocate restrictive measures against them.
The argument in "favor" of prejudice often assumes that the bigot has at least some very good "reason" for not liking certain groups of people.
How then explains the fact that those who said that they enjoyed Jews and Negroes also

A Scum of Litter

By STEPHEN SCOTT

VANCOUVER (CP)—A peacock stood on a picnic table in downtown Stanley Park, its tail trailing into the long, unkempt grass.

Beside it was an empty whisky bottle; behind, a rusting can.

Another of the lovely birds stood in solitary splendour beside a bed of headless tulips, one of the normally neat and beautiful beds in the massive park now slowly being choked with weeds.

"Kind of a mess," a picketing member of the striking civic outside workers union was told as he trod by lawns plush with flowering daisies and sprinkled with paper.

"Could get worse," he said glumly, walking on.

An elderly man, out for his morning constitutional, sorrowfully pushed a piece of gum wrapper off the sidewalk with his umbrella.

SCUM

"They'll settle soon," he said of the 1,500 outside employees—from garbage men to park maintenance workers—who have been on strike for higher wages for more than three weeks.

Downtown there is a scum of sodas, cigarette packages, gum wrappers and other paper in street gutters.

Litter baskets, fixed to the sidewalk on main streets are overflowing, sometimes with garbage pushed in by harassed householders, presumably in the dead of night.

Boxes of garbage lie beside many, sometimes to the distaste of news vendors nearby. Some baskets have been ripped from their stands, a task calling for considerable effort, perhaps by nearby store-keepers angry at the mess. Matches have been set to the contents of other baskets.

Long grass in small parks is starting to cover the paper strewn over it, but piles of junk can be seen under some bushes.

At the empty Kitsilano Park swimming pool a piece of broken iron fence sits lonely on the muddy bottom and a pretty pink azalea bush has a halo of aluminum foil.

SEEMS CLEAN

The greens of the city-owned golf courses sit as smooth islands amid fairways of grass growing as high as six inches. The union allows the greens to be cut.

But, for all that, the city looks surprisingly clean, considering street cleaners and garbage men have done no work for so long.

It is the back alleys that tell the tale. Great piles of refuse, some beginning to stink, are set to the contents of other buildings up behind the stores, unlikely enough not to have contracts with private garbage collectors.

Overflowing garbage cans are joined by jammed cardboard boxes, now falling apart after rain.

The piled-up refuse is even disgusting to the rag men who make a living picking it over for salvage.

Householders are making trips to the city dump with their garbage. Failing that, they store it, burn it, bury it or find some way of disposing of it.

In the last category is the story of the woman seen driving around the park. When she came to an isolated part of the road she jammed on her brakes, jumped out and deposited her bag of garbage on the side, then sped off again.

Workers Reject City Offer

VANCOUVER (CP)—An 11-member committee of striking Civic Outside Workers Wednesday rejected an interim city wage offer designed to get them back to work.

Jack Phillips, secretary of the 1,500-member union said the vote was unanimous, and the committee now will recommend non-acceptance by the union strike committee and by the membership.

Aldermen hammered out the settlement formula at a marathon session Tuesday. They offered strikers a 14-cent hourly wage increase retroactive to Jan. 1 if they returned to work immediately while a provincial inquiry commissioner brings in a proposal for final settlement.

Pearl Bailey Shaken By Union's Lecture

TORONTO (CP)—Singer Pearl Bailey says she was thrown off balance shortly before her opening performance Tuesday night at the O'Keefe Centre by two unwelcome men who visited her hotel room.

"The union men gave me a two-hour lecture on a dispute they said had arisen between the William Morris Agency—my agents in New York—and AGVA (the American Guild of Variety Artists)," Miss Bailey said. She said the men were representatives of the guild.

"They said that unless I signed a contract with a Toronto agent, I wouldn't be allowed to appear."

Miss Bailey said she refused because her Morris Agency contract stipulates that she pay second commissions to no one.

"I'm ignoring the ultimatum," she said.

Graham Tells British

West's Morals Declining

LONDON (Reuters)—American evangelist Billy Graham launched his second British crusade here Wednesday night by preaching a fiery sermon decrying the sexual immorality of the Western world to 18,000 people massed in a London stadium.

Gesticulating fiercely with both hands, the evangelist challenged his audience to set a moral and spiritual tone for a world "that so desperately needs your leadership."

He spoke of the rebellion against authority and the sexual immoralities that he said have taken over Western Europe and North America since the end of the Second World War.

DECLINE

"In addition to the ever-frightening international situation is the moral decline of the West," Graham said.

Graham, 47, told the audience to come forward "to receive Christ" and within minutes found himself surrounded by 450 persons.

He told them: "Jesus forgives you your sins. I have no power to forgive you, but I bring this message from him."

Graham's call to the audience was followed by a short pause, then a young girl wearing her hair in braids stood up and walked towards the dais.

Seconds later, others began leaving their seats and flocking to the dais.

The two-hour service began with a mass choir of 2,500 men and women singing hymns.

"Millions of Christians all over the world are praying for us here tonight," said Graham.

"They are praying that a torch will be lighted in London that will give spiritual and moral light to a world that is rapidly plunging into darkness."

Graham will be preaching for the rest of this month in almost nightly rallies at London's Earls Court Stadium.

Artist's concept of Surveyor landing on moon

Big Success By Surveyor

SOFT TOUCH ON MOON FOR U.S.

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — America's Surveyor spacecraft made a spectacularly successful first-try soft landing on the moon at 11:17 p.m. PDT Wednesday, blazing a trail for Apollo astronauts to follow by 1969 in the U.S. race with Russia for a manned lunar landing.

Loud clapping from jubilant scientists at the California Institute of Technology's Jet Propulsion Laboratory greeted the announcement that Surveyor had landed on the lunar surface and that telemetry data indicated "it's down and functioning."

All systems were reported "operating properly. The Surveyor appears to be in good condition."

The first step in the landing sequence began about 2,000 miles from the moon. Small gas jets fired by radio command from earth, turned the spacecraft around so that its main retrorocket faced the moon.

When Surveyor dropped to within 500 miles of the moon, its altitude-marking radar turned on. At the 60-mile mark, the radar triggered three small throttleable engines and then ignited the main rocket.

With a 10,000-pound burst of thrust, the solid-fueled rocket slowed the spacecraft from 5,900 m.p.h. to 269 m.p.h. in 54 seconds.

When Surveyor reached within 5.45 miles of the moon, the spent retrorocket was jettisoned, cutting the weight of Surveyor from 2,134 pounds to a mere 620 pounds for the landing.

Thereafter, the three liquid-fueled Vernier engines took over the task of slowing Surveyor down even more. When the spacecraft reached a height of only 14 feet from the moon and was descending at about 3 m.p.h., the three vernier engines shut off, letting the vehicle glide gently to the lunar surface.

The landing impact was cushioned by shock absorbers on its three legs and by crushable aluminum pads on its feet.

At the end of its 63-hour 213-483-mile space voyage, Surveyor landed in the moon's Sea of Storms.

The Sea of Storms is a relatively smooth area on the west side of the moon just below its equator and 60 miles north of the crater Flamsteed.

Russia's Luna 9 made history's first soft landing on the moon Feb. 3 after four unsuccessful attempts. The landing sites for Luna 9 and Surveyor are in the same sea, but are 550-600 miles apart.

Luna 9 radioed back closeup pictures of the lunar surface and data on its composition. The feat gave the Russians an unmistakable first in the lunar sweepstakes, but U.S. scientists denied that it put the

Friday Next Target Day For Troubled Gemini 9

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — Harried engineers Wednesday fixed the bulky computer guidance system that only hours earlier forced a two-day delay for the Gemini 9 spacecraft of luckless astronaut Thomas Stafford and Eugene Cernan.

It was the second time in 15 days that Stafford, 35, and Cernan, 35, got the bitter word in their space capsule that their launch had been postponed, this time to Friday.

The astronauts had come within less than two minutes of blastoff when their computer system went awry. As the seconds ticked off, their "space window"—the time allotted to go into orbit in chase of a target satellite—expired.

The trouble was traced to two faulty electronics units in a transmission device that takes guidance information from a computer and sends it to the launch site.

The two faulty parts, called logic modules, were replaced and preliminary tests showed the trouble had been eliminated.

Despite Fee Rise

B.C. to Hold Premium Line

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett said Wednesday the government will increase its subsidy to the B.C. Medical Plan, if necessary, rather than increase premiums on its low-cost medicare scheme when doctors' fees go up on Jan. 1.

He also said that when the national medicare plan is approved by Ottawa, the provincial government will try to get Ottawa to contribute to the B.C. Medical Plan.

The premier seemed sympathetic to the 8.5-per-cent increase in doctors' fees which the B.C. Medical Plan agreed to pay at the beginning of the new year.

He said it must be kept in mind that the increase (still under negotiation) is to cover a three-year period during which there was no fee increase.

The plan is "subsidized, as you know," the premier said. "It is not the intention of the government to increase the premiums—we will increase that over-all subsidy if necessary."

BEST IN CANADA
The government will study the national medicare plan when it comes up in Ottawa, said Mr. Bennett, adding:

"Our plan is now the best plan in Canada—of course we'd like the federal government to contribute toward it."

"Once the federal act has been brought down we will be able to discuss how the plans can be dovetailed."

Police Strike Headed Off

QUEBEC (CP) — Agreement was reached early today heading off a strike of Quebec's 3,200 provincial policemen which had been scheduled to start at noon, a spokesman for the Quebec Provincial Police Association said.

The spokesman said all the demands of the 1,800-member association have been satisfied.

Gallows Go Up In Leopoldville

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — Workers Wednesday night erected a gallows in Leopoldville's grand square where former Congolese premier Evereste Kimba and three former cabinet ministers are scheduled to be hanged for treason today.

A late-evening broadcast said the hangings would go on as scheduled, indicating President Joseph Mobutu had rejected appeals from diplomats and church leaders to commute the sentences.

Bosch Grabs 2-1 Lead For Presidency

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI) — Former president Juan Bosch took a two-to-one lead over his principal rival Wednesday in early, inconclusive returns from the Dominican Republic's presidential election.

Returns from about 10 per cent of the voting precincts in the capital gave Bosch 12,147 votes to 6,323 for Joaquin Balaguer, his chief opponent. Rafael Bonnelly, the dark horse candidate had less than 1,600 votes.

There were no immediate returns from the interior, where the bulk of Balaguer's support reportedly lies. Bosch, a leftist, was expected to draw his chief support from Santo Domingo and other urban areas.

The initial returns were issued shortly after provisional president Hector Garcia Godoy went on radio and television to congratulate the Dominican people for the "exemplary way" in which they conducted themselves during the voting.

About 12,000 soldiers and police guarded the nation's 3,400 polling places after a tense campaign, but voting proceeded in an orderly manner, with no major incidents reported.

A 42-member ad hoc committee of observers from the Organization of American States also extended its "warmest and most sincere congratulations" to the Dominican people.

Congressman Henry B. Gonzalez of Texas, a U.S. observer in the group, said he saw voting proceeding "smoothly, everywhere."

Ky and Buddhist Critics Reach Vote Compromise

SAIGON (AP) — Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military government and his Buddhist critics agreed Wednesday on a formula to give civilians a voice in guidance of South Viet Nam toward the general election Sept. 11. Buddhist crowds protested the compromise.

Rains Pellets

Addicts Law On Way

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. House passed pioneering legislation Wednesday to fight narcotics addiction with medical treatment instead of prison terms.

The roll call vote was 367 to 1. The disenter was Rep. Martha Griffiths (D-Mich.) who said she objected to offering a "tribe of immunity from prosecution to get addicts to submit to treatment."

Although cut back, somewhat after a spirited two-day debate, the administration-backed bill would give federal judges unprecedented new power to suspend criminal proceedings against addicts who are considered good prospects for rehabilitation.

The bill, which now goes to the Senate, would allow judges to give addicts accused of non-violent federal crimes the option of standing trial on the charges or volunteering for "civil commitment."

Secret Bomb Used

SAIGON (UPI) — An armada of 120 U.S. air force jets using a powerful secret bomb turned eight square miles of North Viet Nam into an inferno Tuesday in the war's greatest bombing mission, it was disclosed Wednesday.

U.S. military spokesmen said the warplanes, striking in wave after wave from morning to night, pulverized Yen Bay supply complex 80 miles north of Hanoi, destroyed 72 warehouses, damaged 44 others and knocked out 25 of 30 anti-aircraft positions in the area.

Reliable sources said the air force jets dropped a hitherto secret and personnel bomb that shoots out thousands of lethal pellets. It was designed for use against such targets as clusters of North Vietnamese manning anti-aircraft guns.

The sources said the anti-personnel bomb had been used before against North Vietnamese targets, but this was the first time its use had been disclosed in the war.

Vancouver Magistrate Finds Hole in Vehicle Act

Parkers' Paradise—for a Month

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver's traffic police were ordered to stop ticketing illegally parked cars Wednesday after Magistrate Les Bewley discovered that a section of the provincial Motor Vehicle Act, deleted at the last session of the legislature, affected the issuance of such tickets.

What this means is that if police don't see you in the car, they can't issue a ticket. They can tow away your empty car if it's blocking traffic, overparked or illegally parked. But unless they catch you in it, no ticket can be issued, because they can't identify you positively as the driver.

In a statement issued after Magistrate Bewley's decision, city Prosecutor Stewart McMoran said charges against identifiable drivers will continue, since the decision has no bearing on this type of case.

Meantime, offences under the act and Vancouver's street and traffic bylaw which depend on the licensing provision of the act for proof of ownership and vehicle operation will be dropped, pending result of an appeal.

The appeal is not expected to be heard until the end of June.

Mr. McMoran said the legislation which was revoked placed the onus on the owner of the car to prove he was not driving the car or had not loaned it at the time of an offence. Now, the onus is on the Crown to prove the owner of the car was the individual driving it.

Magistrate Bewley discovered the deletion in the act during the trial May 31 of Nurmi Simm of Burnaby.

Mr. Simm had been charged with going through a stop sign.

Meter Business as Usual in Victoria

There will be no change in Victoria and if you park your car without putting money in the meter you can expect to get a ticket.

City Solicitor T. P. O'Grady said Wednesday that no action would be taken here at least until a superior court has handed down a decision on the controversial parking issue.

The deletion of Section 68 of the Motor Vehicle Act may have weakened the securing of a conviction somewhat, said Mr. O'Grady, but he considered that the previous section of the act, which was also relevant, was sufficient to secure the conviction of a car owner.

"I hesitate to give an opinion at this stage, but you can say that there will be no change in Victoria until a decision has been handed down by a superior court," Mr. O'Grady said.

Cure for Bunion Begins With Proper Information

What is a bunion? It is bursts of the joint of the big toe. Shoes that are too tight or heels that are too high subject the joint to continued pressure. The bursa (a little fluid-filled sac in the joint) becomes inflamed and terribly sore. The metatarsal bone becomes misshapen. At that point, getting the shoe back to the right size and shape is the only thing that will really correct the situation.

How long to heal? Obviously that will depend on how much bone must be removed. The surgeon can give you a reasonable estimate after examination. Obviously you aren't going to be walking on that foot in a couple of days. You have to let the tissues heal, then work out the foot, and then, I suggest, let the foot be your own weight. That does not mean you will abuse all that time. A suitable

New Sources Needed

Comox Valley Area

Water Board Urged

COURTENAY — The long-awaited water survey report still has not arrived for study but chairman of the water committee, Geoff Browning, has released a synopsis of the report.

The full report is now expected to be in his hands sometime late in June.

The synopsis will be studied by his committee and brought to city council June 6 for consideration by aldermen.

NEAR LIMITS

The existing water supply systems serving the major population centres in the Comox Valley are either being used to their full capacities to meet present demands, or are approaching the limit of their capacities. The City of Courtenay's supply from Brown River has proved barely adequate during the summer months, and the limited yield of the wells supplying the Village of Comox has necessitated severe water restrictions in recent summers.

The Village of Cumberland, which also supplies Royston Improvement District, has an adequate supply for its present needs, but studies indicate that by 1985 the water requirements of the two communities will exceed the fully-developed yield of the sources of supply and that the prospects for economically obtaining additional supplies are not promising.

OTHER DISTRICTS

The smaller improvement districts of Arden, Sandwich and Little River have comparatively new systems, and are experiencing no difficulty in meeting their present needs. Minto Improvement District and Kye Bay Improvement District have no public water supply systems.

The larger communities in the Comox Valley are therefore confronted with the choice of either augmenting their water supplies by developing their separate systems, and thereby perpetuating the present fragmented pattern of water supply in the area, or forming a greater water board to co-ordinate the supply of water under one central authority and to deliver water in bulk to the boundaries of the participating municipalities or districts.

WATER BOARD

In this report, tentative boundaries for a greater water board are proposed, which would include the City of Courtenay, the Village of Comox, the improvement districts of Sandwich, Arden, Minto and the lower portion of Royston Improvement District. It would be to the mutual advantage of the Village of Cumberland and a greater water board if Cumberland was to continue using its existing sources of supply and not be included in a greater water district.

The most economical source for a greater water board would be the Puntledge River. Two schemes have been considered: pumping from below the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority's powerhouse and a gravity diversion from the river above the penstock intake.

While the capital cost of the gravity scheme would be greater, an estimated total of approximately $800,000—spread over two stages, the annual costs of system operation would be less, and this scheme is therefore recommended.

The average cost, over 25 years, of supplying water in bulk is estimated at 9.2 cents a 1,000 gallons. The estimates show that the costs for independent development of the separate water systems would be slightly lower than under a greater water board for all the communities considered, except in the case of Courtenay, where the costs would be some 45 per cent lower for independent development.

However, the cost figures do not reflect the considerable advantages that would indirectly accrue to the general economy of the valley from the establishment of a greater water board and which would include an incentive to prospective investment in industry, a more favourable climate for growth and development and the confidence generated from a planned program for the future deployment of valley water resources.

Royston Plan

Residents Respond

ROYSTON — Residents here have responded with a will to the recent invitation from the Community Club for every person to participate in some way, either financially or by volunteer labor in the community's centennial project.

Initial returns from a campaign, in which every household was contacted, showed $252 in cash with many pledges of volunteer labor and a large number of contacts yet to be made to complete the survey.

Executives of Royston Community Club, sponsoring organization of the centennial project, have expressed a sincere vote of thanks to the residents of the community for their co-operation, and also to all the workers who participated in the co-operation survey.

A special source of gratification to club executives was the fact that many of the volunteers who conducted the survey were new workers, who showed a growing interest in community affairs.

Girl Guides of the Royston district with their leaders played a prominent part in the campaign to get every resident of the area to take some part in the project.

Success of Royston's project—development of a park and play grounds on land owned by the Community Club adjacent to the elementary school—is assured with the continued cooperation of the residents. Already pledges of heavy equipment for clearing and leveling the land have been secured. It is announced by Mr. B. Parnham, chairman of the local centennial committee.

It is estimated that the total project will cost approximately $3,000 with the provincial and federal government each sharing one-third the cost.

Blair Mayne, president of the Community Club, reported to the executive committee that the recent Child's Own Theatre project was extremely successful. Fourteen shows, at two-week intervals, were held at the Royston Hall, with one live show being held in Courtenay.

Approximately 100 children attended the shows, it was reported and a vote of appreciation was extended by the club to Pelham Bunting, principal of Royston School, for his work in making the project a success.

City Lacks Homes For Needy Families

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI—Although many of the rental units offered as low cost housing are seriously below par in this area, no one should let the idea that the building inspector and fire chief object to small or inexpensive homes.

Their only objection is to housing which constitutes a health or safety hazard for the occupants, whether they are renters, or owners, native or white, says city building inspector Bill Seward.

Nor should it be implied that any one area is more at fault than another, where inadequate low-cost housing is concerned. Almost every area has one or two homes which do not conform either to civic building standards or to the standards of neighbors.

But a single look at some of the homes now under orders from the building inspector to come up to standard or come down completely shows that owner neglect has been as big a factor as neglect by the tenant.

Plumbing faults, wiring of the old-fashioned two-wire type, heating arrangements as ingenious as they are dangerous, crumbling foundations, or no foundations at all, all play a part in decisions to condemn property.

And it's not a decision taken lightly, when civic officials know that when they say a family must vacate some unsuitable dwelling, they are imposing an almost unsolvable problem on a family already beset by lack of money and worldly goods.

Many houses, rented to one native family, are soon bulging with two, or three or more families.

But officials cannot crack down on this situation as hard as they might like to.

What can these people do, when friends or relatives arrive in town and cannot find a place? They try to make them welcome for a few days. The situation gets no better, and first thing you know, six months has passed. It has become a semi-permanent situation, and hard to do anything about," officials claim.

Some of the houses condemned stand side-by-side with almost identical homes, of the same vintage, which have had regular upkeep.

As a result, while one home is an eyesore, and rentable only to the least satisfactory tenants, the neighboring house may offer comfortable, desirable accommodation readily appealing to either a renter or purchaser.

Some of the homes are offered as semi-furnished accommodation. Any furnishings remaining in some of them are almost beyond hope. In one house, only recently vacated, two old iron cots had a khaki covered mattress each. Huge holes spewing left stuffing did not add to their charm. Nor did a squeaking and rustling that betrayed the presence of something other than the photographer.

In the bathroom, only the toilet remained. The wash-basin was missing, a bath-tub evidently had never existed.

In another house, also under orders to clean up or come down, straight pipes led water away, and let sewer gases rise without effort. Neither windows nor ventilation was available in this bathroom, and due to some malfunction in the plumbing, it was necessary to put the plug in the bathtub to keep effluent from being thrust up into the tub when the toilet was flushed.

Not all low-cost housing is in this state of disrepair. But at present no plans are underway to provide any new low-cost housing in this area.

"Housing is going up on all sides for the well-employed and the well-to-do," said the building inspector, "but almost nothing is available for those on low incomes or welfare, whether white or native."

Meantime, many live with-out complaint in housing that should rightly be condemned because they are afraid to complain. If they do complain to their landlord, he may say if you don't like it, move. If they complain to city officials, perhaps the home will be condemned.

In either situation, the low-rental tenant will be in the same sorry spot, or out on a wretched mound of seeking, with little hope of finding, other accommodation.

Authority Gets Word To Plan Sister Ship

The B.C. Ferry Authority has been authorized to proceed with the necessary plans for building a sister ship to the deep-sea ferry Queen of Prince Rupert, Premier Bennett said Wednesday.

He had announced recently in connection with the inaugural run of the new ferry between Kelsey Bay and Prince Rupert that "we will call for tenders immediately for a new ship for this route."

"We will be calling tenders for the new ship," he reiterated Wednesday, "it's all been authorized."

North Cowichan

Council Stalls on Bid for Fire Protection

Reeve Morton

By KLAUS MUESTER

NORTH COWICHAN—Taxpayers in the unorganized area of Saltair want fire protection from the Chemainus Volunteer Fire Department and North Cowichan council Wednesday afternoon decided to get more information.

Saltair is between North Cowichan Municipality and the Town of Ladysmith.

In a letter, Saltair residents asked council what steps should be taken to get the protection and council learned about three-fifths of the more than 300 taxpayers want this protection.

At the end of November last year, Saltair people became painfully aware of the lack of fire protection in their area when the home of a widow burned to the ground because proper fire-fighting equipment did not come to the scene promptly.

Only reluctantly did the Ladysmith fire chief send out a truck but the blaze by then had raged out of control.

Volunteers from the Chemainus and Ladysmith fire brigades finally lost their battle against the blaze.

Ironically, the widow's husband, Fred Rumble several years before, had pressed for fire protection from either Chemainus, Ladysmith or both but it never materialized. Reeve Donald Morton Wednesday said fire protection for Saltair had been discussed on a number of occasions but the letter from the Saltair taxpayers was the first formal request.

North Cowichan was told the Saltair water board would raise the necessary mill rate for the protection from the Chemainus fire department. Reeve Morton said the request for protection covers a larger area than anticipated.

He said, "We are dealing with a volunteer fire department and these men should be asked as well." If they would be willing to provide the protection.

Coun. John Cannon said: "The Chemainus Volunteer Fire Brigade is fully prepared and interested on a humanitarian basis to give this fire protection but there are some financial aspects that must be explored first."

He said one of the vehicles of the Chemainus brigade would have to be replaced and it could be a costly venture.

Coun. Cannon added, "we cannot accept it lightly," because it could be disastrous financially for the Chemainus Fire Protection District.

Reeve Morton remarked a vote probably would have to be held and if asked by the Saltair.

He said, "It is not quite as provincial government North Cowichan could carry it out in simple as it looks."

Following the disastrous Saltair fire in November, taxpayers at Saltair stressed they would be very willing to pay for the protection. Reeve Morton hinted it might be possible to make the Saltair Water District into combined water and fire protection district.

Council will consider a request from the North Cowichan Recreation Commission to buy two acres of land estimated at $3,500 for park development adjacent to the Duncan Kinsmen Park at Quamichan Lake.

Council also:

● Granted $300 to the Cowichan Valley Athletic Club and $100 towards transportation of youngsters to Victoria where they take advanced Red Cross swimming instruction.

● Learned from municipal police officer and local assistant fire marshal Tom Brunton the fire some weeks ago in the crawl space of the Cowichan High School was probably caused by children playing with matches or smoking.

● Will allow Alberni Video Services Ltd. to erect an antenna on Mount Prevost.

● Will investigate complaints from Crofton ratepayers about septic tank effluent being dumped at the Crofton garbage dump, and will get quotes for a weekly garbage collection for Chemainus residents who claimed the once every two weeks service is not sufficient.

'Victim Author Of Own Death'

BULLETIN

NANAIMO—A jury of 10 men and two women took three and a half hours Wednesday night to find Lawrence Lawson not guilty of charge of criminal negligence and failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Lawson was convicted on a lesser charge of dangerous driving and remanded for sentence.

By PETER TAYLOR

NANAIMO—The perpetrator of the accident was the dead man himself, defence counsel Bob Goseltime told an Assize Court jury here Wednesday.

The jury was hearing criminal negligence charges against Lawrence Lawson, 24, of Duncan, who is alleged to have been responsible for the death of Donald Olson, 21, of Duncan Dec. 28.

There were no defence witnesses and Mr. Goseltime relied solely on his address to convince the jury.

"All witnesses stated when the car got onto Lake Cowichan Road it fishtailed. This should indicate to you the road was treacherous," Mr. Goseltime said.

At the time of his death, Olson was standing on the Lake Cowichan Highway, and prior to this he had fought with Lawson.

After the accident two other witnesses, Sidney LeBlanc and Bon Joseph, testified they had seen Lawson.

Mr. Goseltime said his client was in a state of fear, "a fear that was justified," he added.

The poor lighting in the area was another factor Mr. Goseltime put to the jury.

"There was no lighting. They were seeing something in the dark. Due to a grade in the road witnesses couldn't see the lights of the car until it was 100 feet away."

"If they could not see the lights then the driver could not see them. They were in dark clothing on a dark night."

Water Reservoir Urged As Sprinkling Restricted

NANAIMO—A reservoir is needed in the built-up areas north of the city, Bob Kelly, chairman of the Departure Bay Water District, said Tuesday afternoon.

He said two weeks ago his group suggested to the Greater Nanaimo Water Board it should take over the area known as Lost Lake and pump water into it from the board's mains.

Already, Departure Bay has had to impose sprinkling restrictions and some apartments in the upper levels of the area lack the necessary pressure to flush their toilets.

PUMP

Mr. Kelly said a pressure pump is on order to correct this and it could arrive tomorrow or in two weeks.

"The wiring, connections and fittings are in, but there's been some delay by the manufacturer," he said.

He saw no danger of not enough water to fight fires at the present time because the fire trucks are able to pump water out of the mains.

"But if it was a really hot summer then this water may not be available," Mr. Kelly added.

"We feel the water board has some responsibility in this matter," he explained.

"It's not necessarily the fault

Burglars Grab Change

DUNCAN—Burglars Wednesday night gave up their attempt to crack open a safe at Hudson's Hardware downtown but they rifled the store's till and took about $30 in silver.

Police said they entered the store through a rear window, pried open part of the safe but finally gave up.

At the Duncan butcher shop on Station Street thieves broke a window, reached inside, opened a door and left with about $80 in cash.

Students Use Buoys To Travel Canada

By BOB PETHICK

Colonist Marine Reporter

SATURNA ISLAND—Unofficial aid is being supplied to a group of school children by the Japanese with the Canadian Coast Guard acting as the middle-man.

The whole idea started when Bob Quinney, lightkeeper at East Point, heard that the children of the island were trying to raise money for a coast-to-coast trip in Centennial year to see all the interesting points in Canada.

One of the first thoughts that came to the lightkeeper was floats used by the Japanese on their fishing nets that break loose and float up on northern sections of the West Coast of Vancouver Island bring a good price.

In some places the large glass floats bring as much as $50 as souvenirs.

Not many of the floats make it to southern Vancouver Island. They get hung up on the northern coast and lighthouse keepers are in an ideal position to start a collection.

So Mr. Quinney thought of his friend Bert Pearce, the keeper of the light at Cammanah Point and remembered there had been a mention of a surplus of the glass floats found, but there was a problem—how to get the floats from one lighthouse to another.

He asked headquarters

for permission to have the floats picked up by light-house tender and outlined the students money-making plan.

Headquarters thought it was a pretty good idea—so good that lighthouse superintendent Capt. William Exley put out a general bulletin to all keepers and so far the return stands at 33 floats.

So far the children have raised $500 through activities and an additional $600 of the $5,000 goal has been pledged by parents.

This year the children plan to take an active part in the 15th annual lamb barbecue when the Saturna Community Club plays host to more than 2,000 B.C. and

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — America's Surveyor spacecraft made a prestigious soft-landing on the moon Wednesday night, blazing a trail for Apollo astronauts to follow by 1969, and closing the gap with Russia with new live photographs of the lunar landscape.

Surveyor impacted on the moon at 11:17:37 p.m. Victoria time. Less than 36 minutes later, the first television photographs were transmitted to earth.

Scientists said the pictures were "good quality."

The first picture showed one of Surveyor's three spider-like legs on its crumpled pod on the moon.

It indicated that the surface of the moon was hard. The leg was not buried in the moon's surface and it did not appear to be covered by dust—a condition also reported by the Russian lunar probe.

Scientists said the spacecraft had deviated only two degrees in its landing from the pre-programmed area.

STABLE
The spidery three-legged space voyager climaxed a 63-hour, 250,000-mile flight in perfect style.

Scientist Albert Hibbs, commenting to reporters at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, said strain gauges on the three legs "indicated a soft landing."

He added that sun sensors indicated the 620-pound craft was stable throughout the tricky descent. An antenna which failed to extend after launch Monday from Cape Kennedy, Fla., causing concern for success, apparently snapped into position at landing. Hibbs added.

CLEAR
The second photograph showed the lunar surface bisected by one of the spacecraft's antennas. The picture was sharp and clear and showed what appeared to be small rocks or mounds resembling freshly-plowed ground. The ground seemed to be pitted.

This photo was a low-resolution photograph of about 200 lines per inch. It was anticipated that high-resolution photos of 600 lines per inch would show the moon's surface with more clarity.

MOON CRUST
The photographs were expected to help scientists determine whether the moon's crust is hard enough to safely support a manned landing by America's three-man Apollo space ship by 1969.

Russia and the United States are racing to be the first to land a man on the moon.

The triumph of Surveyor, making a soft landing on the moon on its first attempt, brought the United States much closer to Russia in the lunar sweepstakes.

The first step in the landing sequence began about 2,000 miles from the moon. Small gas jets fired by radio command from earth turned the

Friday Next Target Day For Troubled Gemini 9

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — Harried engineers Wednesday fixed the bulky computer guidance system that only hours earlier forced a two-day delay for the Gemini 9 spacecraft of luckless astronaut Thomas Stafford and Eugene Cernan.

It was the second time in 15 days that Stafford, 35, and Cernan, 32, got the bitter word in their space capsule that their launch had been postponed, this time to Friday.

The astronauts had come within less than two minutes of blastoff when their computer system went awry. As the seconds ticked off, their "space window"—the time allotted to go into orbit in chase of a target satellite—alarmed shut.

The trouble was traced to two faulty electronics units in a transmission device that takes guidance information from a computer and sends it to the launch site.

The two faulty parts, called logic modules, were replaced and preliminary tests showed the trouble had been eliminated.

Despite Fee Rise

B.C. to Hold Premium Line

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett said Wednesday the government will increase its subsidy to the B.C. Medical Plan, if necessary, rather than increase premiums on its low-cost medicare scheme when doctors' fees go up on Jan. 1.

He also said that when the national medicare plan is approved by Ottawa, the provincial government will try to get Ottawa to contribute to the B.C. Medical Plan.

Clergymen Thinking Of Divorce

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A clergyman said Wednesday that "a staggering number" of United Church ministers are contemplating divorce.

Rev. H. W. Vaughan, secretary of the church's board of colleges and schools, said at the London conference of the United Church that "you would be amazed" at the number of ministers considering divorce. He gave no figures. (See also Page 3.)

Police Strike Headed Off

QUEBEC (CP) — Agreement was reached early today heading off a strike of Quebec's 3,200 provincial policemen which had been scheduled to start at noon, a spokesman for the Quebec Provincial Police-men's Association said.

The spokesman said all the demands of the 1,800-member association have been satisfied.

Gibbet Goes Up In Leopoldville

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — Workers Wednesday night erected a gallows in Leopoldville's grand square where former Congolese premier Everiste Kimba and three former cabinet ministers are scheduled to be hanged for treason today.

A late-evening broadcast said the hangings would go on as scheduled, indicating President Joseph Mobutu had rejected appeals from diplomats and church leaders to commute the sentences.

Bosch Grabs 2-1 Lead For Presidency

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI) — Former president Juan Bosch took a two-to-one lead over his principal rival Wednesday in early, inconclusive returns from the Dominican Republic's presidential election.

THREE YEARS
He said it must be kept in mind that the increase (still under negotiation) to cover a three-year period during which there was no fee increase.

The plan is "subsidized, as you know," the premier said. "It is not the intention of the government to increase the premiums we will increase that over-all subsidy if necessary."

BEST IN CANADA

The government will study the national medicare plan when it comes up in Ottawa, said Mr. Bennett, adding:

"Our plan is now the best plan in Canada—of course we'd like the federal government to contribute toward it."

"Once the federal act has been brought down we will be able to discuss how the plans can be dovetailed."

There were no immediate returns from the interior, where the bulk of Balaguer's support reportedly lies. Bosch, a leftist, was expected to draw his chief support from Santo Domingo and other urban areas.

The initial returns were issued shortly after provisional president Hector Garcia Godoy went on radio and television to congratulate the Dominican people for the "exemplary way" in which they conducted themselves during the voting.

About 12,000 soldiers and police guarded the nation's 3,400 polling places after a tense campaign, but voting proceeded in an orderly manner, with no major incidents reported.

A 42-member ad hoc committee of observers from the Organization of American States also extended its "warmest and most sincere congratulations" to the Dominican people.

Congressman Henry B. Gonzalez of Texas, a U.S. observer in the group, said he saw voting proceeding "smoothly everywhere."

Ky and Buddhist Critics Reach Vote Compromise

SAIGON (AP) — Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military government and his Buddhist critics agreed Wednesday on a formula to give civilians a voice in guidance of South Viet Nam toward the general election Sept. 11. Buddhist crowds protested the compromise.

Rains Pellets

The agreement capped a day of rowdiness in which students sacked and burned the U.S. consulate in Hue and a screaming mob of youths burned a paper effigy of President Johnson in Saigon to emphasize their opposition to American support of Ky's regime.

Twenty monks and nuns doused themselves with gasoline in the muddy compound of the Buddhist Institute and threatened to commit suicide by fire, as five Buddhists had done in the last five days. But other monks intervened and a loud-speaker of the main pagoda called for an end to such self-sacrifice.

TO ADD CIVILIANS
Highlights of the compromise formula:

● Ten civilians are to be added to the existing 10-man military directorate, with June 3 as the target date. The civilians will be named by "mass organizations, religions and political parties." A commune failed to spell out exactly how.

● The enlarged directorate is to elect a chairman June 6. The chairman of the existing directorate is Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, the Roman Catholic chief of state.

● The enlarged directorate will name a "people's" and "armed forces council" to assist the present war cabinet in the interim before the election of a constituent assembly Sept. 11.

Secret Bomb Used

SAIGON (UPI) — An armada of 120 U.S. air force jets using a powerful secret bomb turned eight square miles of North Viet Nam into an inferno Tuesday in the war's greatest bombing mission. It was disclosed Wednesday.

U.S. military spokesmen said the warplanes, striking in waves after wave from morning to night, pulverized Yen Bay supply complex 80 miles north of Hanoi, destroyed 72 warehouses, damaged 44 others and knocked out 25 of 30 anti-aircraft positions in the area.

Reliable sources said the air force jets dropped a hitherto secret anti-personnel bomb that shoots out thousands of lethal pellets. It was designed for use against such targets as clusters of North Vietnamese manning anti-aircraft guns.

The sources said the anti-personnel bomb had been used before against North Vietnamese targets, but this was the first time its use had been disclosed in the war.

Vancouver Magistrate Finds Hole in Vehicle Act

Parkers' Paradise — for a Month

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver's traffic police were ordered to stop ticketing illegally parked cars Wednesday after Magistrate Les Bewley discovered that a section of the provincial Motor Vehicle Act, deleted at the last session of the legislature, affected the issuance of such tickets.

What this means is that if police don't see you in the car, they can't issue a ticket. They can tow away your empty car if it's blocking traffic, overparked or illegally parked. But unless they catch you in it, no ticket can be issued, because they can't identify you positively as the driver.

In a statement issued after Magistrate Bewley's decision, city Prosecutor Stewart McMorran said charges against identifiable drivers will continue, since the decision has no bearing on this type of case.

Meantime, offences under the act and Vancouver's street and traffic bylaw which depend on the licensing provision of the act for proof of ownership and vehicle operation will be dropped, pending result of an appeal.

The appeal is not expected to be heard until the end of June.

Mr. McMorran said the legislation which was revoked placed the onus on the owner of the car to prove he was not driving the car or had not loaned it at the time of an offence. Now, the onus is on the Crown to prove the owner of the car was the individual driving it.

Magistrate Bewley discovered the deletion in the act during the trial May 31 of Nurmi Simm of Burnaby.

Mr. Simm had been charged with going through a stop sign

Meter Business as Usual in Victoria

There will be no change in Victoria and if you park your car without putting money in the meter you can expect to get a ticket.

City Solicitor T. P. O'Grady said Wednesday that no action would be taken here at least until a superior court has handed down a decision on the controversial parking issue.

The deletion of Section 68 of the Motor Vehicle Act may have weakened the securing of a conviction somewhat, said Mr. O'Grady, but he considered that the previous section of the act, which was also relevant, was sufficient to secure the conviction of a car owner.

"I hesitate to give an opinion at this stage, but you can say that there will be no change in Victoria until a decision has been handed down by a superior court," Mr. O'Grady said.
